Vice-Chancellor's Message

Welcome to the magnificent campus of the Adventist University of Africa (AUA), where individuals are transformed and leaders are developed. AUA was born out of a dream to offer post-graduate qualifications and research to meet the educational needs of the church and society.

AUA is a chartered and accredited university in Kenya offering exclusively post graduate studies. It was established by the world church, the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, and supported by the three Divisions of the SDA Church in Africa.

The University affords conducive learning environment with qualified international faculty, award winning library, state-of-the-art infrastructure, scholarships, and flexible teaching schedule suitable for working professionals.

The academic programmes at AUA are underpinned on a solid Biblical foundation and SDA educational philosophy which reads: "Adventist education provides more than academic knowledge. It fosters a balanced development of the whole person-spiritually, intellectually, physically and socially... and to nurture thinkers rather than mere reflectors of other people's thoughts; to promote loving service rather than selfish ambition".

Thus far, more than 850 graduates representing 37 nationalities have been conferred with post graduate degrees from AUA. I encourage you to consider joining AUA, where you will discover a strong culture of excellence in teaching, research, service and Adventist ethos. You will receive more than a degree, a life-changing experience that develops you as a leader for service.

Throughout this bulletin, you will find information about academic programmes and services offered to students to have a world-class experience.

MOTTO

Developing Leaders for Service

PHILOSOPHY

As a Seventh-day Adventist educational institution, in harmony with the distinctive characteristics of Adventist education, AUA sees true education as redemptive, restoring the image of God in human beings.

Thus, AUA endeavours to foster a balanced development of the whole person—spiritually, intellectually, physically, and socially. The time dimensions of Adventist education span eternity. It seeks to develop a life of faith in God and respect for the dignity of all human beings; to build character akin to that of the Creator; to nurture thinkers rather than mere reflectors of others' thoughts; to promote loving service rather than selfish ambition; to ensure maximum development of each individual's potential; and to embrace all that is true, good, and beautiful.

VISION

To be a premier university in postgraduate and professional education and research.

MISSION

To deliver outstanding postgraduate education from a biblical foundation to prepare competent leaders to serve the church and society in a Christ-like manner.

OBJECTIVES

The Adventist University of Africa strives to achieve the following objectives:

1. To equip students with research skills and problem-solving methods, enabling them to synthesise knowledge from many sources, and helping them become self-directed lifelong learners. Thus, graduates will be capable of independent research and implementation of findings. Frequently, education is involved almost exclusively with learning subject matter, often with little consideration of the relationships between pieces of knowledge. AUA programmes are directed towards helping students solve problems rather than memorising solutions. AUA professors take special care to give assignments that foster thinking rather than memorising. To this end, one of the first courses to be taught in all programmes currently offered is research methods, with emphasis on research in applied settings.

2. To challenge and prepare students to expand their respective areas of service and influence by systematically involving others in their mission, and teaching them to perform appropriate tasks, as needed. Traditionally, pastors and leaders in other disciplines are seen as doers. In the context of the membership explosion in Africa, AUA programmes will attempt to modify this understanding, turning its graduates into mentors and coaches who will empower others by providing them with opportunities to grow and serve. Such a change will require the dedication of AUA administrators and professors to the teaching and modelling of inclusive ways of doing things.
3. To foster understanding and respect for people of other religious persuasions. The Bible teaches us to love others, even our enemies. Certainly, that teaching would involve understanding and respecting those who have different religious persuasions than our own. AUA professors model this way of thinking, even while teaching the Seventh-day Adventist interpretation of religious reality.
4. To inculcate a high sense of justice, and to maintain the rights and freedoms of others. The Bible teaches that we are to “do unto others” as we would like to have done unto ourselves (Matt 7:12, KJV). Justice and respect are integral and important parts of this biblical mandate. In a world where justice and respect are often forgotten, these values will be modelled by AUA administrators, faculty, and students.
5. To achieve an awareness among students of the vital problems within contemporary society, and to develop a concern for finding solutions. AUA upholds the scriptural concept of being “not of this world, yet living in this world.” That is, Christians are citizens of the world and must take it upon themselves to address problems that exist in society. AUA faculty and students will be strongly encouraged to make the places where they live and work better. Student assignments will include projects that deal with social situations in the places where they work.
6. To foster intellectual growth and the acquisition of knowledge within the atmosphere of Christian faith and commitment, regarding the nature of reality, humanity, knowledge, and values. AUA professors are committed to Biblical values. They model their faith in their teaching and interaction with students. Classroom teaching and interaction will reaffirm the place of these values in everyday life. AUA students will be encouraged to develop their own knowledge within the atmosphere of faith.

GOALS STATEMENT

The Adventist University of Africa has set the following goals:

Adventist Christian Identity

Build a University community based on Adventist beliefs and practises. Promote Christian unity while celebrating cultural diversity. Foster spiritual development for all members that results in a Christ-like character.

Service to Students and Community

Provide timely and quality services within the University community as well as to the neighbouring community. Respond to personal and community needs. Mentor and support partner institutions.

Spiritual and Educational Excellence

Encourage excellence in all matters as being a duty before God. Provide quality facilities, materials and environment. Employ outstanding international faculty and staff. Produce graduates that display excellence in thought and conduct.

Academic Freedom and Responsibility

Encourage serious and responsible academic pursuits. Provide open avenues for discussion and sharing of ideas in various areas of study.

CORE VALUES

The Adventist University of Africa promotes the following values among its faculty, staff, and students:

Accountability

Fairness

Respect

Integrity

Collaboration

Adventist Heritage

HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

The Adventist University of Africa has been established with a clear mandate to provide post graduate Adventist education and gain expertise in research within the context of the African continent. With a rapidly growing population and the church constituency in Africa, the church leaders realized that the possibility of doing quality postgraduate studies in Africa was challenging. The growing membership of the Church in Africa challenged its leaders to find solutions to the increasing demand for committed leaders with knowledge, skills and a positive attitude at all levels of the Church and a highly equipped nurturing ministry.

This led, in 2003 to a consultation meeting requested by the three Divisions with representatives from Adventist colleges and universities in Africa and from the General Conference. At the 2001 Annual Council a task force was appointed called the Africa Graduate Education Taskforce (AGET) to “plan and facilitate the establishment of graduate programs based in Africa and to prepare a detailed plan and timeline for the location, design, resource mobilization, and governance of the graduate programs.”

The Taskforce of fourteen members, eleven invitees in the area of finance and education including the Division Education Directors and representatives of universities in Africa and the General Conference met on September 10 and 11, 2003 in Arusha. The consultation ended with the recommendation to establish Adventist University of Africa (AUA), a new institution that would offer postgraduate programs for the whole of Africa. The new institution would only offer post-graduate degree programmes in abbreviated intensive sessions each year and started operating since 2006.

In January 2006, the first students were admitted at Solusi University, Zimbabwe. The interim authority was given in 2008 and the charter was granted by the Government of Kenya in 2009. Then in May 2006 at Babcock University, Nigeria; in July 2006 at University of East Africa Baraton more cohorts have begun. The first cycle finished with a total of 238 students enrolled in MA in Pastoral Theology and MA in Leadership. In 2009 a total of 167 graduates formed the first graduating class of the University. A total of 787 have graduated from Adventist University of Africa as of 2021.

The University was granted accreditation from the Commission of University Education (CUE) of Kenya for the following programmes:

AUA CAMPUS FACILITIES AND STUDENT SERVICES

The campus of AUA is located at Advent Hill, off Magadi Road, Ongata Rongai, Kenya, about 24 kms Southwest of Nairobi.

Educational Support Services

Judith Thomas Library

Judith Thomas Library (JTL) is an academic library that serves Adventist University of Africa. The current building housing the library was officially opened on 28th May 2012. The library is named after Judith Thomas, who gave seed money for the construction of the building. It has a relevant collection of books, journals, electronic resources and audio-visual materials as per the Collection Development Policy. The library conforms to the Standards and Guidelines for University Libraries issued by Kenya Commission for University Education. The library provides a reading area, reference services, research materials and other library services to the students, faculty, and staff under a very welcoming and conducive atmosphere. The services are also extended to workers in other institutions within the Advent Hill and the community surrounding the library.

Judith Thomas Library has embraced technology to offer dynamic services. To cater for our clientele that are within the continent of Africa and beyond, the library has subscribed to the most widely used and subscribed electronic resources as part of the collection. These are e-books and academic journals that can be accessible with the click of a button.

The library has a stock of over 25,000 print books, numerous periodicals and audiovisual materials. The stock is divided into; general circulation and reference materials. Books are classified using the Library of Congress Classification Scheme. The library uses KOHA, an integrated library management system.

African Adventist Heritage Museum and ASAH Website

African Adventist Heritage Museum

The African Adventist Heritage Museum (AAHM) is located in the Judith Thomas Library on the second floor. It provides the Seventh-day Adventist history of the three Sub-Saharan African divisions: East-Central Africa, Southern Africa-Indian Ocean and West-Central Africa Divisions.

The main objectives of the African Adventist Heritage Museum (AAHM) is to document, educate, inspire and motivate students, staff, visitors and researchers who visit Adventist University of Africa.

The Museum contains carefully selected information on religious and secular history of Africa, demography, culture, independence, diversity, continental highlights, gospel challenges, unreached people groups and Swahili basic words, which all grace the colorful walls of the Museum.

African Seventh-day Adventist (ASAH) Website

African Seventh-day Adventist History (ASAH) is a website created and operated by the Adventist University of Africa.

The website was borne out of a partnership with the three divisions of the church in Sub-Saharan Africa: East-Central Africa Division (ECD), West-Central Africa Division (WAD) and Southern Africa-Indian Ocean Division (SID).

ASAH's mission is to educate, inspire, and equip global Seventh-day Adventist researchers, scholars, students and laymen by providing open access information, documents and materials on the history of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Sub-Saharan Africa.

You can visit the website via www.africansdahistory.org.

The Lindsay and Evelyan Thomas Multipurpose Complex

The Lindsay and Evelyan Thomas Multipurpose Complex is a state-of-the-art facility that incorporates the latest technology, needed teaching/learning environments with ten classrooms and conference centre, 1200-capacity multipurpose hall, a dining area with kitchen, fitness centre, ATM, pavilion in the rear, open air terraces and administrative offices. The Complex features smart classrooms and is a certified green building, evidencing the commitment of AUA to environmental sustainability.

The Ellen G. White Estate Branch Office

The Ellen G. White Estate Branch Office is dedicated to acquiring, preserving, and promoting a comprehensive collection of Ellen G. White writings and church heritage resources in all formats. It serves AUA students and Adventist communities in all three Divisions in Africa (ECD, SID, and WAD) by collaborating with the regional Spirit of Prophecy Coordinators, Ellen G. White Research Centres and Study Centres. It assists in research on Ellen G. White and church heritage related subjects. It also organises and leads out seminars on selected topics related to Ellen G. White's life, ministry, writings, their interpretation and application. Apart from these it also organises and leads out Seventh-day Adventist heritage-oriented programmes that reveal the life and ministry of church pioneers, making it applicable to contemporary Adventists in Africa.

ICT Services

The AUA Information and Communication Technology (ICT) department aims at providing the technology, infrastructure and technical support required to enable AUA to be one of the best universities, fostering the highest standards of postgraduate education in Africa, advancing knowledge and professional skills in a wholistic context.

In the area of infrastructure, the AUA ICT department provides a high quality network and internet connectivity to faculty, students and staff, in offices, classrooms, library, student hostels and faculty houses. This enables access to the internet and web resource.

The ICT department also provides all the necessary technology along with appropriate software and hardware equipment to support the academic/research, financial and administrative activities of the University. This include but not limited to: proxy servers enabling students and faculty to access e-resources from anywhere in the world, video-conferencing facilities and a Learning Management System (LMS) for online teaching and online meetings, laptop and desktop computers for faculty and office work, photocopy, print and scan facilities, voice over IP and email systems for efficient communication.

Finally, the AUA ICT department provides maintenance and support. The department is in charge of the ICT operations and maintenance of the infrastructure, technology and equipment. Technical support and training is provided to faculty, students, and staff.

AUA Email

Wireless Internet access is available on campus for all students, faculty, and staff. The ICT Office gives each registered student, faculty, and staff member an email address in the AUA domain (aua.ac.ke).

All official email to students and/or from the University will be completed through the University's mail system. To accomplish this:

1. All students applying to AUA will be given an email username/address valid for 6 months. The new email address and access information will be sent to the email address used by the student during the application process and, thereafter, all further communication will be by the AUA account.
2. All students accepted to AUA will have their email username/address validity extended for one full year.
3. All registered students will have their email address validity extended permanently.
4. All faculty and staff, including adjunct professors, will be given a permanent username/ email address.

Students and faculty may forward their email to another email account, but they are still responsible for the information contained in the message sent to their AUA account. AUA will not be held liable for their failure to receive the information in a timely manner. The automated "forward and delete" option is disabled for AUA accounts.

STUDENT SERVICES AND CAMPUS LIFE

AUA publishes a Student Handbook, which provides information on worship services, shopping, recreational facilities, transportation, security, housing, cafeteria services, health services, immigration and visa information for the main campus. This information is also available on the Extension instructional locations and is provided to all new students at the time of student orientation at the beginning of a new programme.

Spiritual Life

The University's Spiritual life office offers the following programmes to the faculty, staff and students:

Ten Days of Prayers.

We start the year by joining the Global Community in the ten days of prayer. We ask God to do incredible things in our lives. Through prayers, we experience connection to Him as we carry out our assignments at the University.

Sabbath Worship.

We conduct Sabbath worship on campus every Saturday. We are edified and encouraged. "Prayer and faith will do what no power on earth can accomplish" (Ministry of Healing, p.509). The worship brings the Advent Hill Community together every Sabbath.

Mid-Week Prayers.

We conduct mid-week worship every Wednesday, both in the morning and evening.

Vespers and Sundown worship.

We conduct Friday vespers and Saturday sundown worship.

Week of Spiritual Emphasis.

We conduct two Week of Spiritual Emphasis annually. We give God glory for the experience of revival among the University community.

Prayer and Meditation.

The Auditorium serves as a place for prayer and meditation that provides spiritual enrichment and religious experience.

Week of prayer.

We conduct week of prayer in the month of November every year for faculty and staff. The week of prayer has given a new hunger of the power of the Holy Spirit.

Community Service

Students and faculty have an opportunity of ministering to various churches within and without. We receive many invitations for week of Prayer, Camp meetings and revival schedule.

Scholar's Chapel

We conduct scholars chapel every first and third Tuesday of each month.

Reach out

We conduct reach out programmes quarterly.

Health Services

The Advent Hill Clinic is run by the Better Living Hospital, and it provides holistic healthcare to the entire Advent Hill Community that consists of seven different entities. It is operated by one registered nurse and a clinic assistant. The clinic is located in the basement of MPC building, AUA.

Nearby chemists and hospitals:

The nearest chemist is just outside the main gate and there are several along the road. All hospitals require patients to pay cash, or use insurance before receiving services. Some nearby hospitals: Fatima Mission Hospital, Nairobi Women Hospital, Garlands Medical Centre, Sinai Hospital.

For specialized treatment and consultation, Karen Hospital is located along Karen on Lang'ata Road. It is a 5-10 minute drive from Galleria Shopping Mall.

AUA Fitness Centre

The AUA fitness centre is equipped with various workout equipment for the benefit of AUA students, staff and faculty at a minimal fee. It is opened twice daily from Monday to Thursday– in the morning and evening, and on Sunday evening.

Gym membership can be obtained by contacting the AUA finance office through email (finance@aua.ac.ke).

Guest Rooms

AUA has spacious guesthouses that provides accommodation for the university guests. Students may request through the hospitality office to use the guesthouses to host their guests. Faculty and staff guests can also book these guesthouses.

Student Accommodation

AUA provides accommodation in four residential apartments with different specifications:

Simba block: Contains spacious lounges on each floor, and has three single rooms per unit that share a toilet and a bathroom. There is a total of 54 such rooms. A kitchen space is available at the ground floor of the building that gives an opportunity for those that may wish to cook, but generally, this block houses students that prefer not to self-cook.

Ndovu Block: Has a total of 24 self-contained rooms that can accommodate 2 occupants per room. There is a total of 8 units, each with 3 rooms, a lounge, dining area, a kitchen, and a washing area.

Chui Block: Made up of 16 single rooms with shared toilet/bathroom facilities. Each unit has two rooms, a lounge, a dining area, a kitchen, and a washing area.

Kifaru Block: Consists of 8 units, with each unit having a master en-suite bedroom, and two other bedrooms with shared toilet/bathroom facilities. It also has an equipped sitting and dining area, a kitchen, and a washing area.

Note:

- Keys will only be issued to students who have been cleared financially.
- Self-sponsored students should pay a 100% of preferred housing charges and meals.
- Any student who arrives on campus and is not registered for housing should pay accommodation charges in cash as a visitor until their registration is regularized.
- Students residing on campus will be issued with a check in/out Form.
- Students are not allowed to accommodate another occupant (be it a nanny, another student, a family member or any kind of guest) except on approval from the Finance Office.

Meals

AUA Cafeteria: All residential students are provided with a complimentary lunch throughout their stay at AUA. Breakfast and supper can be purchased at the cafeteria at an average cost of $5 per meal. This amount may vary depending on the cost of food in the market.

Self-cooking: Those who wish can use the available kitchens to prepare their own meals. They however must provide for themselves all cooking equipment that they would require.

Immigration

International Students should complete their application for the student's pass within two weeks upon arrival on Campus.

International Students will be charged $100 annual immigration service charge ($50 immigration charges + $20 Alien card + $30 Handling charges) to help in the processing of the student's pass. Students from East Africa member states receive the student pass gratis, but pay the other charges.

Below are the requirements from the student for student's pass application: (<https://fns.immigration.go.ke/>)

1. Application Form 30 duly filled, signed and stamped by the institution head
2. Copy of your admission letter
3. Copy of valid national passport (bio-data page)
4. Current immigration status of the student (if in the country)
5. Current two (2) passport size colored photos
6. Copies of basic academic certificates
7. Commitment letter from the sponsor
8. Proof of funds (for self-sponsored students)
9. Police clearance

To every student application, the university will add:

1. A detailed cover letter addressed to the Director General of Immigration Services indicating the course to be pursued and the duration
2. Copy of registration certificate for the institution from the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology
3. A copy of the identification document of the university personnel authorized to handle the immigration documents
4. A checklist confirming availability of all the required documents.
5. Adventist University of Africa Student Council (AUASC)

There is an established student council, for and by the AUA students, with a position of sponsor, filled by a faculty member through a vote by the student body. The AUASC constitution provides guidelines on who qualifies, and how they can participate in elections into office for a non-renewable 2-year tenure for the following seven positions:

Chairperson
 Vice Chairperson
 Treasurer
 Secretary
 Chaplain
 Sergeant-at-arms
 Social Affairs and Welfare

Welcome to Kenya

In Kenya, we say to you Karibuni!. It means welcome in Kiswahili. To make the most of your stay and help you get a quick orientation, here is a short list of useful information:

Visa

Visas are available for most nationalities at most entry points into the country, either by road or by air. It is best, however, to check with authorities about visa regulations for your country well before travelling. The Kenyan government has a website where you can check for the Kenyan visa eligibility for your appropriate action: <https://evisa.go.ke/eligibility.html> The fee for the single entry visa is $50 (as of the time of publishing this Academic Bulletin) and is valid for 90 days. A visa extension or a multiple entry visa can be processed through the immigration offices.

Vaccinations

Yellow Fever is required at the border and should be taken at least 10 days prior to travelling. Other vaccinations are at the discretion of the individuals and their medical consultants. Nairobi is designated as a malaria-free zone. However, it is advisable you consult with a healthcare specialist in this matter, especially if you intend to travel to areas where malaria is endemic.

Covid-19 Regulations

AUA publishes when required Covid-19 regulations as per Kenya's regulations, and the university specific requirements for AUA campus adherence, and students are regularly updated on these regulations via email, notices and websites.

Security

Within the country, security is fairly good. However, it is a sensible precaution not to walk or drive alone after dark.

Currency

The Kenyan Shilling (Ksh) is used throughout the country. You can search online for exchange rates or visit any Bank or Exchange Bureau. Kenya has highly advanced mobile money services that can be used as an alternative to cash, and among the many mobile money service providers, M-Pesa tops the list. M-Pesa is a mobile-phone money transfer service, payment and micro-financing service, that allows for cashless transactions almost everywhere you may need to make a transaction. All you will need to use M-Pesa services is to register a Safaricom SIM card at an authorised dealer, and you will be ready to transact using any type of phone.

Banking

The banking system in Kenya is well integrated into the international system, allowing for various transactions and the use of most MasterCard or VISA cards, as well as other credit cards.

Nearby Stores and Malls

AUA is close to several outlets within a 2km radius, where students can get and replenish their supplies. Supermarkets, shops and kiosks, and open markets are some of the available outlets from which students may get the needs they may require. All these are located within a walking distance, but there are sufficient public transport means to and from these places. Maiyan Mall with several stores such as Naivas is four kms from AUA.

Emergency Services

Dial 999 or 112 for the police, fire brigade or ambulance.

Internet

All AUA buildings provide wireless connectivity. Internet connectivity is available in hotels, cybercafés, and other designated areas. Most mobile telephone companies also provide portable 4G internet connectivity wirelessly, or via USB modems.

Telephone

Telephone cards (credit) and SIM cards are available at numerous telephone outlets, shops and post offices. In Kenya, mobile telephony is provided by Airtel, Safaricom, and Orange. All of them use GSM 850, 900. Most people at AUA are either on Airtel or Safaricom. International calls can be dialled direct (code 00 + country code).

Airport Transfers

Students are required to obtain financial clearance from the Student Finance Office at least seven days before travelling to AUA.

If you require airport pick up or drop, email your itinerary to studentfinance@aua.ac.ke well in advance and a copy to studentservices@aua.ac.ke. If you have financial clearance, your travel itinerary will be forwarded to the Hospitality Department for transportation arrangement.

The transport fare is payable upon arrival at the agent's office via card, cash or MPESA..

Tourism

Tourist destinations are plentiful in Kenya. The country is known for its natural reserves that host an incredible variety of wildlife and a vast array of birds. Among the most visited national parks are the Aberdares, Amboseli, Maasai Mara, Nakuru, Tsavo. The famous Nairobi National Park bordering the city is a 30-minute drive from the University. For mountain climbers, Mt. Longonot and Mt. Kenya are a good beginning, as well as Mt. Kilimanjaro, across the border in Tanzania. Mombasa and the adjacent coastal towns offer sun, sand, and sea, and marine life.

Library Staff

Message from the DVCF

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to Adventist University of Africa (AUA). As an Adventist institution of higher learning, the University welcomes and supports all students in their learning, discovery, leadership development, and engagement both on and off-campus. Since AUA was established to serve sub-Saharan Africa, it is one of the more diverse universities in the continent and fosters a sense of belonging while supporting your success both in and outside of the classroom.

Please take your time and familiarize yourself with the financial information. You can also visit our website under the admissions page to find financial information. Should you need more clarification or assistance, or for obtaining financial clearance, please contact the Student Finance Officer on studentfinance@aua.ac.ke. If you require to understand more about the scholarships or to apply for one, send your email to scholarships@aua.ac.ke.

Since most of our processes and systems are done online, our ICT Department is dedicated to ensuring that you have a wonderful experience. Should you need ICT support, kindly email it@aua.ac.ke. After your financial clearance to book in advance your accommodation send an email to hospitality@aua.ac.ke and our Hospitality Coordinator will respond and facilitate your booking.

I am confident that you will enjoy studying at AUA and you will be indeed be developed for service. I wish you the best and may God bless your endeavors.

Sincerely,

Makhosiwonke Moyo.

Deputy Vice Chancellor for Financial Administration

STUDENT FINANCIAL INFORMATION 2023

All students must take note of the following financial information in order to register and continue their studies:

A. Fees Information

1. Application Fee: An application fee of US$60 is payable at the time of submission of application.

2. Tuition Fee:

a. Masters Programs: Masters tuition fees differ according to the economic levels of the countries that the students come from. As such the various African countries have been put into 5 tiers. The fees per credit for each tier are as follows:

i. Tier A*	US$40 per credit
ii. Tier B*	US$55 per credit
iii. Tier C*	US$85 per credit
iv. Tier D*	US$110 per credit
v. Tier E*	US$225 per credit

Denominational employees are given a 20% discount on these Masters tuition fees per credit.

b. Doctoral Programs: For doctoral programs, the fees per credit are as follows for all students:

i. Doctor of Ministry (DMin)	US$125 per credit
ii. Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)	US$150 per credit

*Note: The number of credits for each program per year is given at the end of this document to assist in computing the tuition fees in a particular year.

3. General Fees: Some AUA fees are per session, others are typically once per program and some are only payable when a student has a specific need. They are categorized as such here below.

a. Per Session Fees (Fees that are charged each session/semester which is once per year):

i. Registration Fee	US$75
ii. ICT Fee - Main Campus	US$150
iii. ICT Fee - Other Learning Site	US$50
iv. Library Fee—Master's programs	US$110
v. Library Fee—Doctoral programs	US$135
vi. Exam Fees	US$20
vii. Lab Fees (for MSc in Comp Science)	US$100

- b. Per Annum Fees
 - i. Research Conference Fee US$50
 - ii. Student Association Fee US$5
 - iii. Doctorate Dissertation/Project Fee US$300

- c. One-Time Fees
 - i. Master’s Thesis/Project Fee US$500
 - ii. Graduation Fee US$400

4. Other Fees and Charges as Applicable

- a. Challenge examination 30% of the tuition credits
- b. Audit credits 50% of the value of tuition
- c. Tuition and Fee Adjustments: Students who withdraw from a class within the first 15% of the contact hours, or before two weeks after the beginning of the academic period during which they were to complete an independent study are eligible to receive a full tuition and fees for the class(es) withdrawn from.
- d. When a student registers for a class as Audit, the tuition rate for that class is 50% of the regular rate, but all other fees apply.
- e. Publication in AUA Journals US$25

5. Books

Students must purchase their own prescribed textbooks. It is advised that students budget approximately US$400 per semester for books.

6. Student Housing and Meals

Students studying at AUA typically travel to one of the campuses for the study session, and may have a variety of options, depending on the location. Due to the wide variability in costs and the fact that different instructional locations charge differently, the Registrar’s office will provide every student an updated price list for that year and location for accommodation and meals.

- a. Accommodation at AUA

At the AUA campus, the hostel charges are nightly (according to the length of occupation as follows:

 - i. Double room shared by two occupants: US$10 per night
 - ii. Single room (one student in the room): US$15 per night
 - iii. En-suite room US$20 per night

N.B. If the student brings his or her own bedding, the rates above are all US$2.50 less per night.

- b. Meal Costs at AUA

Meals on campus are US$4.50 per meal. However, hostel residents shall receive complimentary lunch.

B. Student Finance Policies

1. Requirements for Financial Clearance for Registration

- a. Upon receiving the invoice from AUA, a student must pay the invoiced fees by the deadline indicated on the invoice through any of the available channels as stated on the invoice.
- b. Denominationally sponsored students can be cleared on the basis of a signed and stamped Division Financial Clearance Form from their respective Division Treasury - authorizing AUA to send the charge through denominational channels or committing to transfer the said fees to AUA by a given date. It is the responsibility of the Student to obtain the signature and stamp from the Division Treasury.
- c. At least 50% of the total fees must be paid before the student can be registered for the session and the balance must be cleared before the end of the calendar.
- d. A student who has arrears from the prior session, will be required to clear those arrears and also pay 50% of the next session's total fees, before they can be cleared for registration.
- e. A student who does not pay all the fees upfront, must submit a payment plan for the outstanding balance. This will be done by completing a Student Payment Plan form which will be availed by the Student Finance Office. Such plan must be in harmony with these Student Finance Policies and the students will be expected to honor the plan.
- f. A student who failed to honor a prior payment plan will no longer be allowed to submit payment plans. He or she must pay their fees in full upfront.
- g. Early Payment Discount: Students who pay all the semester's fees before the start of each semester, will receive a 5% discount on the tuition fees.
- h. Interest at a rate of 1% per month will be levied on all accounts older than 90 days.

2. Project/Thesis/Dissertation Registration

- a. Prior to registration, a student will receive an invoice for his or her project/thesis/dissertation.
- b. This must be paid for in full before the student can register. Letters from Divisions authorizing the sending of charges are also acceptable.
- c. A student desiring to make a payment plan must pay at least 50% and complete the payment plan form. The outstanding balance must be cleared before the student can be allowed to defend.
- d. The Registry and Deans will be expected to ensure that such financial clearance is in place before facilitating project/thesis registration and allowing students to embark on their project/thesis/dissertation.

3. Defense

- a. Before a student is allowed to defend his or her project or thesis, the student must be financially cleared.
- b. At this stage, financial clearance will only be given to those who have paid all relevant fees to that point, including defense fees.
- c. There shall be no payment plans acceptable at this stage.

4. Graduation

- a. Graduation fees must be paid in full before a student can be put on the graduation list.
- b. No payment plans will be accepted for graduation fees.

C. Scholarships

Students can apply for merit scholarship. The Adventist University of Africa has three scholarship funds, namely:

1. The Brempong Owusu-Antwi Scholarship Fund
2. The Baker Worthy Student Scholarship Fund
3. AUA Merit Scholarship

Details and guidelines of these funds are available on the AUA website under the Admission tab.

Message from the DVCA

Graduate education is a privilege to many among the few who pursue it, while basic education is regarded by many countries in the world as a right to every child. The Adventist University of Africa (AUA) is a General Conference of Adventists institution based on the continent of Africa to prepare leaders with requisite education and skills to serve Africa and the world with integrity. There are many people who can serve society, but few serve with integrity and accept to be accountable for the decisions they make as they purport to serve fellow human beings in leadership positions. The AUA is a University of choice for graduate education for a wider service as directed by the Master and Defender of our faith, Jesus Christ.

At AUA, students appreciate the growing awareness that that God reveals Himself in every field of study; be it Computer Science, Business Administration, Statistics, Public Health, Education, Chaplaincy, or Biblical and Theological Studies. Opportunities for Mission and service are increased by studying at AUA. Each and every one who graduates from AUA can witness that regardless of your field of study, you are prepared to use your knowledge and skills in service to man and ultimately to God. Make AUA your University of choice for graduate education to prepare you for service with integrity.

Risper Awuor, PhD

DVC for Academic Administration
Associate Professor of Educational Research and Evaluation

ACADEMIC INFORMATION AND POLICIES

Admissions Information

AUA is open to all qualified applicants, irrespective of colour, race, ethnic identity, religion, gender, or national origin. Potential students may apply at any time and be admitted subject to fulfilling all admission requirements. Applicants will receive an admission letter before the commencement of the programme. Exceptions to this shall be with the approval of the respective School.

Application Procedure

Applicants are required to complete the application online. The steps are as follows: online application process includes the following steps:

Click “Save and Continue” button after you complete each section to move to the next section.

Step 1 Sign up/Account Creation

On clicking the link: <https://academics.aua.ac.ke/aua/> the applicant is directed to the online application web page and prompted to create a new applicant account and obtain login credentials.

Requirements:

- Input your First name, Middle name and Surname in the provided boxes
- Input your phone number
- Input your email and then reconfirm the email
- Select programme

On ensuring the above details are correct, the applicant is prompted to click the ‘Create Login’ button to submit the details.

Step 2 Issuance of Login Credentials

The system displays a username and a password, highlighted in green on the page. The same password will be also sent to the email address the applicant indicated.

Step 3 Log in

The applicant is returning to a log in page and prompted to input the username and password provided, after clicking ‘applicant login’ button.

Step 4 Upload of the Documents

The applicant should upload the documents required on this section to proceed to the next stage of the application process.

Documents to be uploaded for Admission

1. National ID for Kenyan students and passport copy for non-Kenyan students.
2. Grade 12 /Secondary Certificate and bachelors certificate and transcripts/mark sheets for those seeking admission to Master's Programme.
3. Grade 12 /Secondary Certificate, bachelors and Master's degree certificates and transcripts/mark sheets for those seeking admission to doctoral programme.
4. Disability certificate if applicable.
5. Master's thesis for those seeking admission to doctoral programme.
6. CV and e-photograph.
7. Statement of Purpose

Step 5 Verification and Declaration

This step provides with a complete outline of the information that has been filled in for verification.

After verifying that the uploaded information is correct, the applicant is prompted to sign a declaration form before being allowed to submit the application form for processing.

Step 6 Admission

The submitted application form is received by Registry department for evaluation after which the applicants are communicated through email if they qualify for admission or if more documents are required.

Recommendations and Work Experience

Applicants are required to submit recommendation letters from their previous university, religious leader or their employer/professional field. The documents can be uploaded during application process or sent directly to admissions@aua.ac.ke as an attachment.

See programme specific requirements to know if the applicants need to have relevant work experience after earning their undergraduate degree and for other requirements.

General Admission Requirements

Applicants are advised to refer to programme specific admission requirements apart from the following general admission requirements.

Master's Programmes

Applicants seeking admission into any of the AUA Master's degree programmes must hold a recognised bachelor's degree with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade average of 60%.

Except for Master of Arts Biblical & Theological Studies (MABTS), applicants with a CGPA of 2.50 to 2.99 or an equivalent grade average of 55% to 59% may be admitted on probation (see Admission Status Classification). MABTS applicants must have a CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent.

Doctoral Programmes

Doctor of Ministry. Those seeking admission into the Doctor of Ministry (DMin) programme must have a recognised master's degree in Theology/Religion with a minimum CGPA of 3.33 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent.

Applicants with a CGPA of 3.0 and 3.32 may be admitted on probation (see Admission Status Classifications). After completing one session, the student must obtain a CGPA of 3.33 to gain regular admission status.

PhD in Leadership. Those seeking admission into the PhD in Leadership programme must have a recognised master's degree in any field with a minimum CGPA of 3.33 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent. Those with a CGPA of 3.00 - 3.32 may be admitted on probation status for only one semester. Also, note that a Master's thesis or its equivalent is required to enrol in the PhD in Leadership Programme.

PhD in Biblical and Theological Studies. Those seeking admission into the PhD in Biblical and Theological Studies programme must have a recognised master's degree in the field of Theology/Religion with a minimum CGPA of 3.33 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent. Those with a CGPA of 3.00 - 3.32 may be admitted on probation for only one semester and granted regular admission status subject to obtaining and CGPA of 3.33 or above. Also, note that a thesis or its equivalent is required to enrol in the PhD in Religion Programme.

Admission to two-degree programmes. A student will not be permitted to enrol in two-degree programmes simultaneously.

Admission Status Classification

Based on the documents submitted, applicants are offered admission into one of the categories listed below. If, at any point, upon verification, the University discovers any discrepancy in the documents, the student will be asked to withdraw from the Programme and the University.

Regular

When applicants meet all the entry requirements of the degree programme, including prerequisites, CGPA, submission of original and official academic transcripts and certificates, appropriate recommendation letters they are classified as having regular status.

Provisional

Applicants who have deficiencies in some of the prerequisite courses are admitted on provisional status. Students accepted on provisional status must complete all prerequisites before completing 50% of their coursework. Any prerequisite required for a specific course in the programme must be completed before taking that course.

Conditional

Applicants who have not provided all the original documentation for admission may be given a conditional status if they have submitted photocopies of the documents. The conditionally accepted students have a maximum of six months to provide all the documentation. After that, they will not be allowed to continue studying at AUA.

Probation

Applicants for Master's degree programmes (except Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies) who do not meet the minimum CGPA (3.00) entry requirement for their programme may be admitted on probation upon recommendation of the department if they meet the following criteria:

1. Applicants who have CGPA between 2.50 and 2.99 but with no less than three (3) years of work experience or will be admitted on the regular status if other admission requirements are met.
2. The applicant must meet the minimum CGPA requirement allowed for probationary admission by his/her programme.
3. The applicant must earn a CGPA of 2.75 during his/her first session (12-18 credits) at AUA (except Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies). Failure to meet this condition will result in the discontinuation of the student's studies at AUA.
4. No more than 20% of a cohort will be admitted on probation.

English Proficiency

As AUA uses the English language as the medium of instruction, students must have the ability to study (read, write and speak) in English. To qualify for admission to AUA, students are required to demonstrate English ability in one of the following ways:

1. Have a bachelor's degree from a college/university in an English-speaking country where English was the medium of instruction.
2. Achieve a passing score on a recognised English language test such as TOEFL, IELTS, Michigan. The test scores are valid for three years. The table below shows the minimum required test score.

Required English Test Scores

Test	Minimum Test Score
TOEFL	110
TOEFL iBT	80
IELTS	6
Michigan	220

Registration

Students are expected to register on the dates designated for a course or as specifically communicated from the Office of the Registrar. Financial clearance must be completed, and evidence of medical insurance must be in place. Upon arrival on Campus, students are expected to complete and close registration within 20% of course contact hours. A student is not allowed to attend classes if they miss 20% of the course contact hours. No student will be allowed to attend classes if they will not have registered by the end of the registration period.

Regular Registration

Registration for credit or audit courses is done online or through registration cards from the Office of the Registrar. AUA advises students to complete registration on the date assigned in the Academic Calendar. Consultations with Advisor, Head of Department and/or the Dean of the School on academic matters should be done prior to registration day.

Drop and Add

A student may add a course up to 20% of the course contact hours, that is, two days in a two-week face-to-face intensive course. When a student drops a course during the first 20% of the class contact hours, the course is deleted from the student's records and the student does not pay for the course.

Withdrawal

A 'W' grade is issued when a student withdraws from the course from 20% up to 70% of the class contact hours without financial refund. After that time, the grade for any withdrawal will automatically be the grade earned and this grade will stay permanently on the student's record. Under special circumstances, the University may initiate the withdrawal of a student from a class.

Late Registration

Students who fail to register during the regular registration period shall pay a late registration fee of USD 5 per day until the end of the 5-day registration period. Students shall not be allowed to join a course after 20% of the course has been taught (two days in a two-week face-to-face intensive course).

Cross Registration

Cross registration represents a situation in which a student registers for courses in two different institutions at the same time. Students may apply for cross registration when needing prerequisites or special courses not offered at AUA in order to complete their programme. A student may not cross-register for a course at another institution if the course was failed at AUA.

A student who desires cross registration shall apply through his/her Head of Department and the School Dean. Such approvals must be obtained before a student engages in cross registration. Cross registration shall not be approved during an AUA two-week intensive course. Upon completion of the course in another institution, an official transcript or certified grade report must be submitted to the Registrar's Office who then presents it to the University Senate for approval. Credits will be accepted if they meet the AUA transfer credit policy requirements. In the same way, students who present a letter of cross-registration from their institution may be allowed to take a course at AUA and transfer it to their institution.

Maintaining Registration

To maintain regular status, a student is expected to register annually for courses or research units until all programme requirements are met, all research is completed, and an application for graduation is filled and approved. If a student does not maintain annual registration and does not obtain a leave of absence, he/she must re-apply to the programme in order to continue after an absence of more than twelve(12) months.

Research Continuation

Once a student begins the research phase of the programme, he/she must remain continually registered until the work is completed. If the research is not completed within the specified time, the student must register for Research Continuation (charge equivalent to three (3) credits, but no credit is issued) annually until the research is completely approved.

If the student does not finish the research within fifteen (15) months of the registration date for the final required credits, he/she must register for Project/Thesis/Dissertation Continuation, and pay the normal registration fees that accompany any registration. Continuation is valid for twelve (12) months, and must be repeated each year until the student finishes the research. Research is considered completed when the Printing and Binding Form has all the required signatures, followed by all of the required signatures on the project/thesis/dissertation Approval Page and, finally, submission of the student's name by the Dean to the Registrar as eligible for degree conferral/graduation.

Free Course Policy for AUA Employees

This policy provides for enrolling one AUA course per year free of charge for personal enrichment and growth of interested staff and faculty

AUA permanent staff or faculty member may take a maximum of ONE course per year. The course enrolled can be either 2 credits or 3 credits or 4 credits. However, the policy does not allow for more than one course to be registered in a year, for example: two courses of two credits each may not be enrolled for within the same year.

Non-credit bearing: A staff or faculty member can enrol the course as a non-credit bearing course.

Credit bearing: Those who want to earn credits towards a degree must apply for admission in the program and be accepted by the Admission Committee. In order for a free course to be credit-bearing, all admission criteria and pre-requisites for the particular courses should be met.

Procedure: A staff or faculty member intended to enrol for a free course must submit a request to University Management Board (UMB) through the Supervisor at least three months before the classes start.

The immediate supervisor's recommendation is required before submitting to the UMB.

Approval by University Management Board is essential before registering for the course. The enrolment figure is counted separately of those taking a free course.

Academic Policies

Credit Hours

One credit hour at AUA is defined as 13 contact hours of instructional time (lecture/discussion) in a class setting and two hours of independent work outside the classroom for every hour spent in class. A three-credit course, therefore, includes 40 hours of faculty-student class interactions to be used for lectures and other structured learning activities and examinations, and 80 hours of independent work.

Earning Course Credit

Academic credit may be obtained in three ways:

1. Registering for and successfully completing a course.
2. Transfer of credit by transcript from an accredited institution where applicable
3. Credit by challenge examination where applicable

Normal Credit Load

Every AUA student is expected to register for a minimum of 9 credits hours and a maximum of 15 credits hours each semester depending on the programme.

Time Limitation for Academic Credit

All credits taken towards graduation at AUA must be completed within 8 years of the initial registration date. However, programmes that have a duration of three years must be completed within six years.

Transfer Courses

The University exercises its right to accept all, part, or none of the credits presented from other institutions. Transfer courses are governed by the same admission requirements and academic policies as other University courses. A student desiring to transfer a course into an AUA degree programme where applicable, should secure permission from AUA before enrolling in order to ensure that the credits will be accepted where applicable. No transfer of credits are allowed for Doctoral degree programmes.

Conditions for Transfer

Post-graduate courses taken at other accredited institutions (or in a different AUA programme) may be transferred to an AUA programme, provided all of the following conditions are met:

1. An official transcript or authenticated record is submitted.
2. A grade of B or higher was earned.
3. Transfer credit may not be more than eight years old at the time of the student's graduation.
4. The transfer course is equivalent to an AUA course for which credit is being sought. Equivalency must be established by the Department based on the existing programme curriculum.
5. Credits would be acceptable for a similar degree at the institution at which they were earned.
6. Transfer credits are approved by the School committee and the University Senate.
7. Courses transferred from one AUA programme to another will carry the letter grade earned, and will become part of the student's CGPA. Transfer courses from other institutions will show the grade, but will not be included in the CGPA.

A student who wishes to transfer credits earned at AUA to another college or university should become acquainted with the particular requirements of the programme to which he/she wishes to transfer and secure permission from both universities before enrolling.

Maximum Transfer Credits

The maximum number of credits that can be earned through challenge examination and/or transfer shall not exceed 30% of the degree programme requirements. Transfer credit is evaluated only for the degree programme to which the student is admitted, and the amount of credit awarded is subject to change if the student changes his/her degree programme. Core courses may not be transferred to AUA without special permission of the School.

Grading System Comparison

AUA and Kenyan Grading System:

AUA CGPA of 2.50 is equivalent to second class lower in the Kenyan grading system.

Course Challenge Policy

A class that a student fails cannot be challenged. There are two situations in which a student may request to obtain credits by writing a challenging exam rather than attending a course:

1. The student took the course in the past, but the time elapsed is too long for the credits to be accepted as programme requirements.
2. The student has a profound knowledge and experience of the course content beyond the course requirements.

The following steps should be taken in order to apply for a challenge examination:

1. The student will seek endorsement from the respective Department which makes recommendation to the School Board
2. If the request is granted by the School, the student will register for the challenge examination with the Office of the Registrar and pay the examination fee (30% of the course tuition fee).
3. The lecturer will provide the student with the course outline and/or other materials.
4. The challenge exam will be as comprehensive as possible and should not be different from regular final examination for the course.
5. The challenge examination will be evaluated by two professors and graded as "S" (Satisfactory) or "U" (Unsatisfactory).
6. If the student fails the exam, he/she must register for the course and take it in full.

There are several restrictions to the challenge examination policy:

1. Challenge examinations (unless for updating an AUA course) must take place during the first year of enrolment in the programme. Not more than 30% of the total requirements of a programme may be granted through challenge and transfer credit combined.
2. A challenge exam cannot be taken more than once.

Challenge exams may not be used for changing an audited course to credit.

Directed Independent Study (DIS)

A student in an AUA programme may request for or be advised to take DIS course by the Head of Department; in cases where a student has been hospitalized or has lost an immediate family member (spouse, child, or parents). Directed Independent courses are a privilege and not a right. Biblical or Modern Languages, Programming Languages, and Statistics, Research and other courses that may be advised by the Academic Heads of Department cannot be offered as DIS courses. Core courses will not be taken as DIS. Students on scholastic probation must receive approval from the school Board to take DIS. No more than 15% of the programme of study (2 courses, in most AUA programmes) may be taken as DIS courses. Exceptions to the above requirements will be approved by the Senate.

Directed Independent courses can only be taken with the permission of the Academic Administration Committee upon the recommendation of the School Board and upon the availability of a supervising faculty member. The student and the assigned faculty member shall complete a Directed Independent Study Contract Form obtained from the Registrar's Office for the course. The student shall formally register for the course through the Registrar's Office only after completing the contract with the supervising faculty member and has obtained the necessary signatures. If the Dean is the course facilitator then, the DVCA should sign the DIS contract form.

DIS courses may be offered to students who do not fall under the specified categories above – depending on the availability of a regular faculty to facilitate the course and a three times payment per credit.

All DIS courses will be offered when a regular faculty is available to facilitate the course. One semester hour of DIS/DIR translates to 50-60 hours of individual work (see Definition of a Credit Hour). Directed courses are graded with a letter grade. DIS/DIR courses not completed by the date stated in the contract shall be graded with U or F.

Class Attendance

Regular attendance at all class sessions and laboratory periods, and adequate preparation to effectively participate in discussions is absolutely required. Students who are exceeding 20% of the absences of the class sessions will be required to withdraw from the course. This policy also applies to audit courses.

Lateness to class is not acceptable. An accumulation of 3 late arrivals translates into an absence, and when absences exceed 20% of the total classes,, a grade of "W" will be recorded. Excused absences due to unavoidable circumstances must be verified by an acceptable and verifiable document. Excused absences beyond 20% of the course require withdrawal (W) from the course. If such absences are up to 20% of the total class sessions, the student is allowed to receive an Incomplete (I) grade, if necessary. The "I" grade must be removed within 6 months by completing the class requirements.

Last Day to Enter Class

A student cannot enter a class after he/she has missed more than 20% of the class contact hours.

Repeated Courses

No more than twenty percent of courses taken at AUA towards a given degree may be repeated, and they may be repeated only once. When a course is repeated, both grades remain on the transcript, but only the new grade (whether higher or lower) will be used in the GPA calculation.

Grade Submission

The procedure for grade submission is as follows:

1. Faculty members shall submit their grades no later than two months from the last day of the cohort session to their respective Programme Coordinator
2. Schools/Departments shall moderate grades before sending them to Senate for final approval.
3. Senate will meet to approve grades no later than two months from the completion of the cohort session.
4. All approved grades shall be published within two and a half months from the completion of the cohort session.
5. No faculty member shall publish grades to students before they are approved by the Senate.

Grade Appeal Process

A student who believes that he/she has not received a fair final grade based on the criteria outlined in the course outline may appeal for grade review. The student has the responsibility to demonstrate the need for this review. The grade appeal process shall have the following steps in the order listed:

1. The student shall discuss the reason for disagreement with the grade with the course instructor within one (1) month after the issuance of the grade.
2. If the course instructor does not agree to a change of the grade, the student may appeal to the Programme Coordinator for grade review. This appeal must occur within the semester/session following the issuance of the grade. The Programme Coordinator in consultation with the student and the course instructor, shall review the appeal and inform the student and course instructor of his/her decision.
3. If the student continues to believe there is basis for appeal, the student can appeal to the Head of Department for grade review. The Head of Department will review the entire appeal process, consulting with persons he/she deems relevant, then make a decision and inform the student, course instructor and Programme Coordinator.
4. If the student continues to believe there is basis for appeal, the student can appeal to the School Dean for grade review. The Dean will review the entire appeal process, make a decision and inform the respective persons.
5. The final level of appeal open to the student is to the Deputy Vice-Chancellor for Academic Administration (DVCA). The DVCA will hold a review with the student, course instructor, Programme Coordinator, Head of Department and Dean. After reviewing the appeal, the grade decision of the DVCA is final and will be communicated to all relevant persons.
6. The finalized grade will be recorded for approval by the Senate at a duly authorized meeting, as per the regular protocol for grade approval.
7. All of these appeals shall occur within reasonable time frames, except where time frames are specifically noted.

Change of Grade

A change of grade may be permitted if there has been an error in computing or recording the grade or as a result of a successful grade appeal process. A grade may not be changed because of consideration of work completed following the end of the grading period for which the grade was issued. If not associated with the grade appeal process, a grade change is only initiated by the course instructor and approved by the School and the Senate. To be valid, a Grade Change Form must be submitted to the Registrar's Office within 6 months from when the grade was originally issued.

Academic Probation

All AUA Masters programmes require a minimum CGPA of 2.75 (on a 4-point scale) for graduation, except the Master of Arts in Biblical Theological Studies that requires a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale.

All AUA Doctoral programmes require a minimum CGPA of 3.33 (on a 4-point scale) for graduation.

If the student's overall CGPA falls below the specified required CGPA for graduation that student is on academic probation. Students on academic probation will be counselled to take a lighter academic load. The cohort/intensive course model that AUA follows does not usually permit load reduction. For that reason, a student on academic probation must work with the Programme Coordinator/Head of Department to develop a plan that is intended to help the student raise the CGPA to acceptable levels.

A student may remain on academic probation for one session. The department may grant an additional session if the student makes satisfactory progress toward achieving regular status. The student may not remain on academic probation for more than two semesters/sessions (see *Withdrawal on Academic Grounds).

Procedure for Change of Programme

Sponsored students who would like to change their course of study must first receive permission in writing from their sponsoring organisation. The following procedure then applies:

1. A Change of Programme form must be obtained from the Registrar's Office (or online) and filled out.
2. The form is endorsed by both the releasing Head of Department and the Dean.
3. Next, the Head of Department of the new programme, as well as the Dean of the new programme, endorse the form.
4. The form is then submitted by the student to the Registrar.

Grading Standards

The grading system used in a course must be clearly stated in the course outline and students must be made aware of it. The University has a unified grading system. Grades shall be given as symbols with quality points per symbol as shown below. Quality points will be assigned based on the final letter grades, which should represent the descriptions listed in the table below. Points will, therefore, be converted to a total grade based on 100 available points. Final grades will be reviewed by the AUA Senate to ensure that the grading scale used is appropriate in the AUA context. The grading scale for all courses shall be:

AUA Grading Scale

Percent	Letter Grade	Quality Points	Quality Description
85-100	A	4.00	Outstanding
80-84	A-	3.67	Excellent
75-79	B+	3.33	Above Average
70-74	B	3.00	Average
65-69	B-	2.67	Below Average
60-64	C+	2.33	Below Average
50-59	C	2.00	Weak
45-49	C-	1.67	Fail
40-44	D	1.00	Fail
0-39	F	0.00	Fail

Other Grade Classifications

Other Grade Classifications

Deferred Grade (DG)	For research or other courses designed to require extra time for completion
Incomplete (I)	For illness or other recognised and reported emergency—must be completed within six months
Satisfactory (S)	Acceptable as credit but with no quality point value
Unsatisfactory (U)	Unacceptable for graduate credit
Withdrawal (W)	No academic credit
Audit (AU)	Attended but did not do assignments—no academic credit

DG—Deferred Grade

A deferred grade (“DG”) is given for a course which requires more than the length of a normal course to complete. This usually means that it is restricted to research courses such as Directed Independent Research, or culminating research such as projects, theses, or dissertations. Any other course must receive approval from the School before a DG can be assigned. A DG requires a contract, and must be cleared by the date specified in the contract, which can be no more than 12 months from the end of the grading period of the term in which the course was taken, except in the case of culminating research. The contract specifies what grade will be given if the remaining work is not completed. After that, the DG automatically becomes a U if no grade has been entered.

I—Incomplete

An incomplete ("I") indicates that the student was unable to complete his/her course requirements due to unavoidable circumstances such as illness. This grade may be given, but not because of the student's negligence or mere failure to complete the work in a timely fashion.

The faculty member and the student must fill out an Incomplete Grade Agreement Form, which must be signed by the Dean and filed with the Registrar before the deadline for submission of grades. In the agreement form, details are spelt out as to the work which must be done before the 'I' grade is removed, and the deadline for this to be accomplished.

An incomplete grade that is not removed by the end of 6 months, or by the agreed time limit, shall automatically be changed to an 'F' grade on the grade listed on the Incomplete Grade Agreement Form if no additional work is done. Any request for an extension of time beyond the date on the contract shall be made in writing before the time of expiration on the agreement form, but shall not exceed the 6-month time limit.

AU—Audit

A grade of AU is given for an audited course if the student has met the attendance obligation of the course. The tuition charge to audit a course is half of the cost of taking it.

Drop/Add Course Policy

When a student drops a class during the first week of the semester, the course is deleted from the student's records and the student does not pay for the course. A 'W' grade is issued when a student drops or withdraws from the class during the second week of the semester up to the date stipulated by the academic calendar. After that time, the grade for any withdrawal will automatically be an 'F' and this grade will stay permanently on the student's record. Under special circumstances, the University may initiate the withdrawal of a student from a class.

Assessment Policy

The lecturers design assessment tasks to be completed by students and carry out evaluation to arrive at an evaluative judgement on their performance. The policy states the criteria, purpose, and guidelines for carrying out the assessments for the course. The principles of good assessments, mode, pattern and type of assessments define the assessment process laid out to enhance quality of course delivery.

General Criteria

The assessment process will endeavour to provide indicators of the student's:

- Mastery of a body of knowledge and/or skills.
- Understanding of key issues.
- Capacity for independent thought.
- Ability to deduce, analyse, synthesize, and evaluate.
- Skill in applying theories and methodological content of the discipline.
- Ability to argue and communicate coherently and persuasively, either symbolically or in written form.
- Competence for sound scholarship in the selection, use and documentation of sources.
- Ability to assess and demonstrate their spiritual and moral values and commitment

Purpose of Assessment

- Recognize and grade students academic achievement
- Guide and improve students' performance
- Provide feedback to students on their learning
- Enrich students' learning experience
- Provide feedback on the teaching methodology

Principles of Good Assessment

The principles for good assessment are fairness, validity, reliability, practicality and timely feedback.

Fairness

- Fairness in assessment is when the learner is not disadvantaged but given equal opportunity.
- Assessment approaches, material and methods of grading do not favour a particular ethnicity, race, gender, age or social class.
- Assessment rubric is clear to the students.
- Grading process is be transparent. Students have the right to know the scores they have obtained.
- Assessments can be viewed by more than one examiner.
- Students can appeal for remarking tests, major assignments and final examination.

Validity

- The assessment is designed to align with the course outcomes.
- The assessment method is appropriate to the content assessed.
- The assessment instrument is appropriate to the content assessed.
- The assessment is based on sources relevant to the course.
- The assessment is within the scope of the course mentioned in the course outline.

Reliability

- Assessment brings out comparable results and is consistent in measuring performance of the students.
- Assessment is administered in similar or same conditions, for example, all students are knowledgeable of the assessment criteria, assessors are trained in constructing assessment instruments, major assessments are moderated, and scores are computed systematically.

Timely Feedback

- Assessments done as part of continuous assessment are returned to students to provide feedback.
- Students have adequate time to respond to the feedback received. Assessment helps the students know their performance, progress in their course.
- Assessments help students to know their strengths and weaknesses. It also helps the lecturer to understand students' performance and improve the teaching of the course.

Practicability

Assessment system takes into consideration the available facilities, equipment, time and financial resources.

Mode of Assessment

Students are assessed on the basis of coursework and other guided experiences that constitute part of learning in the course. All written and oral assessment will use English as the medium or otherwise approved, except for examinations of foreign language courses such as Hebrew or Greek, German, French.

Modes of assessment may include some of the following components:

1. Written examinations, short answers, multiple choice and open book tests
2. Essay, reading reports, research assignments
3. Independent research projects, case studies, fieldwork performance
4. Class presentations, laboratory reports, etc.

The modes will be appropriate to both the level of difficulty and to the specific objectives of each subject, and will reflect the expectation of increasing levels of achievement and sophistication as a student progresses. Evaluation should seek to be as objective as possible.

Patterns of Assessment

Departments are to ensure that the pattern of assessment will be structured so as to accommodate the diagnostic purpose of assessment. Each course outline will indicate the percentage each assignment or assessment measure contributes towards the final grade given for that course.

An assessable assignment that constitutes an essential component of the subject that must be passed satisfactorily, the course outline must clearly state the minimum percentage that constitutes a satisfactory pass in each of the essential components. Course facilitators that normally include a sequence of assessable practical classes should regard that sequence as one assignment. The assessment schedule will be clearly stated in the course outline to the students at the beginning of each cohort session/semester. Marking scheme should include weighting of content and style/format/language.

Types of Assessment and weightage

Assessment is an integral component of the course design and should indicate the percentages of each assessment task towards the final grade. A variety of assessment methods and instruments should be used so that no particular group of students will be disadvantaged.

Formative Assessment

Formative assessment refers to assessment that supports the process of teaching and learning. It helps the students to develop the knowledge and skills required for the respective learning area. There should be a balance between over-testing and under-testing. For example: assignments, mid-semester examinations and other assessment tasks that take place during the semester.

The policy distinguishes class activities and assessment activities. A number of class activities may be conducted but do not qualify as assessment tasks, such as class attendance, class participation, devotion.

Summative Assessment

Summative assessment is for making a judgment of students' achievement. This is carried out at the end of a course and it is more comprehensive. For example: final examination, major research paper, open book exam.

Assessment Weightage

The weightage of continuous assessment shall be 60% and final exam will be 40% of the total assessments.

Assessment	Percentage
Formative Assessment/Continuous Assessment	60%
Summative Assessment/Final Exam	40%
Total	100%

Assessments and Learning and Teaching Hours

Students must be given a fair workload and avoid over-assessment and must fit within the learning and teaching hours. The number of assessments for a three-credit course will range from a minimum of three to a maximum of five. The number of assessments for a two-credit will range from a minimum of two to a maximum of four.

The teaching and learning hours for a three-credit course is 120 hours (40 hours of lecturer contact and 80 hours of outside class activities/tasks).

The teaching and learning hours for a two-credit course is 75 hours (25 hours of lecturer contact and 50 hours of outside class activities/tasks).

Permanent Academic Records and Transcripts

The permanent academic record is a complete, unabridged, chronological educational record showing all course work taken through the Adventist University of Africa. All student academic records and documents are private and confidential and are kept at the Registrar's Office. All courses taken or attempted through programmes at AUA are listed.

Transfer credits accepted from another institution toward an AUA degree will be recorded in the student's permanent academic record upon Senate acceptance for the degree.

While the first transcript is given to the student at graduation free of charge, additional transcripts are issued at a cost. The Registrar's Office will issue additional transcripts of a student's record upon written request, accompanied by payment of the designated fee. Telephoned requests will not be honoured.

If a student wishes to have documents collected by another individual, he/she must send an authorization to the Registrar and copy the individual.

Transcripts may be issued during the studies for a corresponding fee. Transcripts are not issued to students with unpaid accounts. AUA transcripts will be issued by the Registrar's Office within 5 working days of receipt of the request and the payment.

Upon request, public information such as dates of attendance, place and date of birth, name of parents, home address, campus address, verification of degree including honours, previous schools attended, etc., is given to:

1. Properly identified representatives from government agencies.
2. Business firms or organisations where credit or possible employment has been requested.
3. Scholarship donors.

Alumni Records

AUA graduates become members of the AUA Alumni Association. Together with the Application for Graduation Form, students shall fill out an AUA Alumni Form for the purpose of assisting AUA to organise, maintain, and update the records of its alumni. The AUA alumni database includes such details as alumni bio-data, degree conferred, year of graduation, and Extension instructional location.

The Academic Bulletin and Academic Advising

Students are responsible for knowing and following the regulations governing academic matters found in this Academic Bulletin. The Academic Bulletin has presented answers to general questions regarding academic policies. Students with unique problems or special circumstances should consult the appropriate course advisor, the Head of Department, the Registrar, or the Dean. However, all consultations should begin with the academic advisor to the student.

Academic Integrity

Avoiding Plagiarism

Plagiarism is a serious research violation. In many educational institutions, plagiarism is cause for giving a failing grade in a class or even expulsion from a programme. Plagiarism is using someone else's words or ideas as if they were one's own. It is equivalent to intellectual thievery.

AUA Statement on Plagiarism

As a postgraduate institution, AUA is committed to high quality and original research. Therefore, the University encourages primary, cutting-edge research (not searches or compilations) and thus manifests zero tolerance for any form of academic dishonesty or plagiarism. Academic dishonesty is not only a sign of a flawed academic attitude, but it is also an expression of a faulty Christian character. The academically dishonest student is cheating himself/herself, the classmates, the professor, the entire academic community, the larger community, and ultimately God. A student who is dishonest only proves himself/herself an irresponsible member of the academic community and of the larger community. Plagiarism is not limited only to textbooks, but also includes media resources, laboratory experiments and results, ideas expressed orally, artistic work, and all copyrighted materials. At AUA, plagiarism includes all of the following:

1. Any form of copying of ideas or concepts—intentionally or out of carelessness—and presenting them as one's own, without crediting the author(s) and/or proper citing/quoting (e.g. without quotation marks and a reference).
2. Copying a sentence, paragraph or section (anything more than 2 words) word-for-word, or even using paraphrasing that is too much like the original. The same rules apply if it is an electronic source, if no author is listed, or if the copyright is expired.
3. Borrowing an idea from someone else or even from one's own earlier work without giving proper acknowledgement. A fact that is generally considered common knowledge may be used without a reference.
4. Unfair use, that is, indiscriminate use of too much material from a source, even if properly quoted and credited.

Turnitin is an antiplagiarism software that is available for use by faculty, staff, and students. Students enrolled in AUA courses are required to use Turnitin to check their work for plagiarism prior to submitting written work to professors. For accepted Similarity Index refer to the Research Protocol/Handbook relevant to each School. Students should be aware that the faculty will be using Turnitin to assist in eliminating plagiarism. In the academic environment at AUA, there is no excuse that justifies plagiarism.

Penalties for Academic Dishonesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism attracts severe penalties, usually decided by the professor, supervisor, or advisor. The penalties may take the form of failure of the paper or of the entire course, suspension, or even expulsion from the University. The University also reserves the right to revoke the degree of a student whose work has been proven plagiarised or academically dishonest. In addition, the writer must remember that plagiarism may also involve court processes, especially when copyrighted material was plagiarised.

Academic dishonesty is any type of dishonesty that occurs in the academic setting. It can include:

1. Plagiarism. As described in the section AUA Statement on Plagiarism.
2. Fabrication. Falsifying of documents, data, information, or citations in any formal academic exercise.
3. Deception. Providing false information or information intended to deceive or mislead an instructor concerning a formal academic exercise.
4. Cheating. Any attempt to copy or copying the answers to an examination or homework assignment from another student or from some other source, or to give inappropriate assistance in an examination or other formal academic exercise.
5. Bribery. Paying or attempting to pay for academic favours.

The penalty for academic dishonesty is an F in the course and one-year suspension for any student caught participating in the above activities.

Graduation Requirements and Procedures

Graduation Dates and Locations

Graduation on the AUA campus happens once each year, typically in June. Additional AUA graduations may occasionally occur on other Extension instructional locations (often in conjunction with a graduation at the school where the extension is located), as long as there is a minimum of 20 students graduating in person.

An additional conferral of degrees (with no graduation ceremony) will be done by the University Senate on the last Thursday of October each year. Students who graduate at that time will be charged the graduation fee and will be issued their diploma. In addition, they are eligible for and may march during the next AUA graduation ceremony without paying another graduation fee. Those students who complete all their requirements at the time of the year, when no graduation and no additional degree conferral are scheduled, are eligible to receive a letter from the Registrar's Office stating that they have completed their requirements and are awaiting the conferral of their degree.

Eligibility for Graduation

In order to qualify for graduation, all coursework must be satisfactorily completed; no grade must be less than 'C' for Master programme, B for Doctoral. The required programme minimum CGPA for graduation must be met and the project, thesis or dissertation must be edited, copied, signed and bound.

A student may choose to graduate under the curriculum and graduation requirements stipulated in the Academic Bulletin effective at the time of his/her beginning of classes or any other Bulletin effective during his/her continuous enrolment. Only one Bulletin can be used as the standard for the graduation; mixing two or more Bulletins is not acceptable.

Graduation Application, Fees, and Other Expenses

Students must fill out a Graduation Application Form 3-4 months before their expected completion date. When the form is received, students will be charged the graduation fee. If the student does not meet the graduation requirements and does not graduate, the said student will need to reapply for the next graduation. The graduation fee is the same whether a student attends graduation or graduates in absentia.

Regalia rental or purchase is not included in the graduation fee. Graduating students are to pay separately for the regalia.

Sponsored students wishing to travel to attend their graduation, whether in their own Division or a neighbouring one, must secure approval from their sponsoring organisation if their travel and lodging expenses are to be covered.

Withdrawal from the University

Leave of Absence

A student who needs to be absent from his/her academic programme for an extended period of time should contact the Programme Coordinator, Head of Department and the Registrar to request a leave of absence. If this is done in advance, the student will not be required to re-apply after the absence if the terms of the leave of absence are fulfilled. A student may take no more than two years of leave of absence during the course of study. A leave of absence does not grant a student an extension to the maximum duration of a programme.

Withdrawal on Academic Grounds

A student whose CGPA drops below the required CGPA for the specific programme for two consecutive semesters shall be asked to withdraw from the University. A student whose performance level does not measure up to demands of a particular programme may be authorised, on request, to change to another programme of study, whose requirements he/she may meet. In no case will a student remain on academic probation for longer than two sessions (2 semesters).

Voluntary Withdrawal

Students may withdraw voluntarily from the University at any time upon the completion of the official Withdrawal Forms obtainable from the Office of the Registrar. Such students may retain grades for the courses already completed and passed. Students who have withdrawn voluntarily from the University may apply to the Registrar for re-admission.

Withdrawal for Disciplinary Reasons

Students who are asked to withdraw for disciplinary reasons may only be re- admitted to the University with the permission of the University Senate on condition/s to be clearly spelt out in the letter of re-admission.

Withdrawal on Health Grounds

A student may be asked to withdraw from the University on health grounds upon due certification of a University-approved Medical Officer. His/her readmission to the University is conditional upon production of a valid medical certificate of health clearance, duly signed by a University-approved Medical Officer.

Message from the Dean

Welcome to the School of Postgraduate Studies (SPS)

It is a great joy and privilege to welcome you to the School of Postgraduate Studies (SPS). SPS will endeavour to challenge your brain to excel, guide your heart to connect more strongly with God, encourage you to mutual support and respect, and foster your life's holistic development. I thank you and praise God for your joining SPS.

As you embark or continue on this important journey of your postgraduate studies, always remember why you are here: to fulfil the plan God has made for you—a plan to prosper you to fit for His service in this world and the world to come. Therefore, prepare effectively by sharpening your mental knowledge and skills required to contribute effectively to society in this 21st century. Do not settle for mediocrity. Also, remember that this world is not our final home—it is temporary. So, whatever you do, always keep it in light of eternity.

You are not left alone in this academic journey. Several resources are available to guide and assist you. The academic bulletin provides information about the processes, requirements, policies, and guidelines the University has put in place to guide you successfully. Your lecturers and professors are there to support you so that you can reach your full academic potential while studying at SPS. Your programme coordinator is there to guide you in your whole programme and make sure you receive the needed support and have access to the necessary resources. Your head of the department will also provide you with more support if you encounter challenges beyond the scope of your programme coordinator.

Our programmes prepare students with the moral depth and intellectual intensity necessary to meet the challenges of the 21st century. Plan intentionally to make the most of your time here as you advance your career goals with us.

May God bless your academic journey at the School of Postgraduate Studies.

PHILOSOPHY, VISION, MISSION, AND GOALS

Philosophy

As part of an Adventist institution of higher learning, the School of Postgraduate Studies (SPS) considers itself a tool to advance the mission of the Church. Thus, SPS is an instrument in the hand of Christ, exemplifying His love and character to the world through its faculty and graduates. To accomplish this vision, SPS must deliver wholistic Christian education that fosters a balanced development of the whole person—intellectually, physically, socially, and spiritually—while developing professional leaders with strong academic skills. The SPS community sees true education as redemptive. It focuses on restoring the image of God in human beings, nurturing them as thinkers, and not mere reflectors of others' thoughts, and promoting a loving service rather than selfish ambition.

As an international school situated in the heart of East Africa, with students from all over Africa, SPS realizes that pursuit of academic excellence, methodological rigor, and the use of universal academic conventions must be contextualized both to the Christian world view and the African Continent. The School aims to position itself on the cutting edge of knowledge creation and dissemination, search for and integration of technology and educational methodologies to the African context. At the same time, SPS seeks to provide the student with a life-transforming experience which will encourage graduates to continually improve their God-given potential.

Furthermore, SPS endeavours to develop individuals, equipping them with competencies to function comfortably and competently within the mosaic of cultures in the world, shaping and sharpening them to be thorough scholars, proficient professionals, and responsible citizens of the world. It is the express purpose of the SPS to prepare people with refined culture, considerate civility, keenness of perception, biblically-undergirded moral values, and analytical thinking to lead effectively in their homes, churches, communities, companies, organizations, and work places.

In essence, SPS seeks to develop a Scripture-based worldview that is permeated with the Adventist perspective, philosophy and mission, and integrated into every academic programme. This worldview calls for compassionate behaviour towards others, and recognition of the dignity and value of every human being who is created in the image of God.

Vision

An entity that develops wholistic competent Christian scholars for service.

Mission

To advance Christ's mission through society development and scholarship.

Goals

Graduates of the School of Postgraduate Studies will be characterized by:

1. A personal commitment to Christ and to sharing Him with others.
2. A deep knowledge of their field and a willingness to share what they have learned with others.
3. The ability to think critically and creatively and to analyse, discern, and observe data meticulously, and to be discriminating enough to choose the best option when confronted with alternatives.
4. Intellectual maturity, which will allow them to use their knowledge to improve any situation in which they find themselves.
5. Professional ability that leads to success and effective service wherever they are called to work.
6. Transparency and openness in all communication with personal relationships that are wholesome, respectful of cultural diversity and individual differences.
7. A commitment to wholistic development, physical fitness and healthful living, fiscal responsibility, and lifelong learning.
8. Emotional intelligence and maturity, allowing them to cultivate and maintain a spiritually healthy relationship with God, inner harmony within themselves, and solidarity with fellow human beings.

SPS Research Handbook

Students who graduate from SPS at AUA will be expected to demonstrate proficiency in research through the selection and completion of a project, thesis, or dissertation. Please refer to the SPS Research Handbook for details on the student research process.

MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Programme Coordinator: Janet Odhiambo, DrPH

The Master of Public Health (MPH) programme in the School of Postgraduate Studies offers you the opportunity to earn a Master of Public Health degree from the highly ranked Adventist University of Africa (AUA). Strong communities are the foundation of Public Health, and AUA is committed to wholistic service, training, and research which are necessary to build our students and communities. Through rigorous academics on-campus, online, and at our Extension Sites, the programme aims to directly impact the well-being of our students, the people of the African continent, and the world at large. Through educational programmes, research initiatives and a service-driven mission, the University is committed to empowering underserved populations and advancing the health of communities around the globe. Information technology is integral to the delivery of every course, including the delivery of content materials, student assignments, and communication between the students and faculty.

Programme Philosophy

The philosophy of the MPH programme is derived from the basic beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church and the mission of the University. The programme recognises the need for the stewardship and development of the person in order to maintain the physical, mental, and spiritual health necessary for the in-dwelling of the Spirit of God and provision of service to others, the local community, and the broader society. Health practitioners are increasingly being required to engage their clients, not only through curative interventions but also with preventive, promotive, and rehabilitative services to ensure that the health of clients is enhanced and that diseases, medical conditions, and their psychosocial consequences do not worsen or recur.

Focus on preventive and promotive health actions is relevant all over the world, but more specifically in Africa where health promotion is scarce due to poverty and low educational levels among the majority of people. A report from the Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) on public health in Africa stated global public health challenges were more acute in sub-Saharan Africa and that the region carries 24% of the global burden of disease (Cooke, 2009). The challenges in public health require a concerted effort in education, for both prevention of disease and promotion of good health.

The MPH programme emphasises empowering people working with communities in Africa and around the world with comprehensive knowledge, attitudes and skills necessary to enjoy better health.

Expected Learning Outcomes

By the end of the MPH programme, students will be able to:

1. Identify major public health problems within the African continent, in particular, and the world at large.
2. Describe conventional and complementary solutions in the prevention and control of common health problems.
3. Apply the skills, principles, concepts, and methods of health promotion as a comprehensive approach for addressing public health issues in diverse societies and settings.
4. Outline effective strategies to address and manage public health problems in order to bring about changes in the lives of people and communities.
5. Design epidemiological research and interpret findings for use as a tool for knowledge, prevention, and control of disease.
6. Evaluate the types, dynamics, prevention, and control of communicable and non-communicable diseases with special attention to tropical conditions.
7. Conceptualize, design, implement, and evaluate programmes and policies to protect and promote environmental health.
8. Plan, develop, and implement health intervention programmes in the community setting and evaluate their impact on alleviating the burden of disability, morbidity, and mortality among community members.
9. Demonstrate a practical understanding of the mechanisms whereby nutrition modifies disease processes, based on rigorous application of scientific principles.

Admission Requirements

1. Have a bachelor's degree with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation.
2. Applicants are to meet the following prerequisites as having been taken at the undergraduate level:
 - Human Anatomy and Physiology/Human Biology (3 Credits)
 - Human Nutrition (3 Credits)
3. Must demonstrate proficiency in English.
4. Have two Recommendations completed online: One from a religious leader and one from your previous university or from your employing organization. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.

Graduation Requirements

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 40 credits of course work with a minimum passing grade of C and a project/thesis equivalent to 6 credits, making a total of 46 Credits.
2. Attain a minimum CGPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale).
3. Successfully complete and make an oral presentation of a research project relevant in the area of specialization.
4. Submit the required bound copies of the research project.

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN APPLIED COMPUTER SCIENCE

Programme Coordinator: Lossan Bonde, PhD

Rapid industrialization, global competition, and advances in technology have enabled man to generate information faster than it can be disseminated. As a result, conventional management tools have become ineffective in responding to information requirements of modern organizations. The speed and memory of the modern computer and communications technology have replaced conventional tools for storing, processing and disseminating information in most organizations. Such information systems have become so vital to the survival of organizations that it is nowadays widely accepted that the major management challenge of the 21st century is how to use information technology to design and operate organizations that are competitive and efficient.

Hence, the government, the non-governmental organizations, the Institutions of learning, the private sector and the parastatals will have interest in such a person and hence need for the programme.

The programme seeks to train competent, committed, and honest graduates that businesses and organisations need to set up, run and maintain their IT infrastructure, and derive competitive advantage through technology.

Philosophy of the Programme

The philosophy of the Master of Science in Applied Computer Science is derived from the basic beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist church and the mission of the University concerning the need for stewardship and development of the person in order to maintain the physical, mental and spiritual health necessary for the in-dwelling of the Spirit of God and provision of service to individuals, the local community as well as the broader society.

The specific philosophy of this programme is that 21st century scientists and technicians are required not only to be competent in their respective areas of specialization but also thrust worthy, reliable, committed, and accountable to God, to their employer, and their direct supervisor.

Expected Learning Outcomes

Programme Learning Outcomes

By the end of the Master degree programme, students will be able to:

- a. Keep abreast of the ongoing trends in research and the technological advancement in computer science
- b. Have the practical skills to integrate new advancements into their current setting.
- c. Effectively compare, evaluate, and specify appropriate hardware and software.

- d. Have an understanding of business environments to smoothly work with business personal in a team setting providing leadership in integrating information and computer technology.
- e. Have the capacity to be a self-starter. Students will have the entrepreneurial skills to plan, organize and start their own business with their respective field of specialisation.
- f. Design and implement information Systems for decision making.
- g. Integrate ethical and moral values in the exercise of their profession.

Specializations Learning Outcomes

Cyber Security Learning Outcomes

By the end of the specialization, the graduate should be able to:

- a. Enumerate and describe the various techniques and technologies used to secure networks and data.
- b. Analyse and discover security breach, and contain the damage cause by the breach.
- c. Evaluate the vulnerability level and provide appropriate control solutions.
- d. Detect and prevent intrusions.
- e. Use appropriate cryptographic tools and techniques to ensure data security.
- f. Develop computer networks and infrastructures security policy.

E-Services Learning Outcomes

By the end of the specialization, the graduate should be able to:

- a. Enumerate and describe current cloud-computing technologies.
- b. Evaluate, specify and implement internet-based solutions.
- c. Analyse big data and provide business decision makers with information and tools.
- d. Lead a software development project team.

Networks and Systems Administration

By the end of the specialization, the graduate should be able to:

- a. Enumerate and describe current cloud-computing technologies.
- b. Plan, design, implement and manage a network system.
- c. Integrate emerging Internet Technologies into local networks.
- d. Specify, set up and maintain systems and networks in a secured and risk controlled environment.

Admission Requirements

1. Applicants MSc in Applied Computer Science must have a first degree in computer science or related fields (Information Technology, Information Systems, and relevant Engineering degrees) from a recognised university with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation.
2. Have two Recommendations completed online: One from a religious leader and one from your previous university or from your employing organization. The applicant should seek the consent of the referees before submitting their details.
3. Must demonstrate proficiency in English.

Graduation Requirements

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 39 credits of course work and a thesis equivalent to 6 credits, making a total of 45 credits.
2. Attain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.75 (on 4.0 scale).
3. Successfully complete and make an oral presentation of a research project relevant in the area of specialization
4. Submit the required bound copies of the research project.

Programme Coordinator: Marie Anne Razafiarivony, PhD

The Master of Business Administration programme is designed to train competent professionals to bring positive and value impact to the organizations where they are employed, whether in the private, public, or nonprofit sector. AUA's MBA intentionally aims at equipping students with technical and soft skills to deliver up to the expectations of their employing organizations. Its purpose is to foster in students a proactive mindset to lead and manage organizations while upholding the Biblical values of integrity, fairness, and accountability. Further, the programme endeavors to provide the necessary competencies for students to undertake research and disseminate relevant information, thus bringing solutions to the various problems in communities around the world.

Programme Philosophy

The philosophy of the MBA programme is in accordance with the basic beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church and the mission of the University concerning ministering, stewardship, responsible leadership, social responsibility, and ethical behaviour.

Organisations today demand versatile, technologically literate professionals who can actively contribute and thrive in a team/project management environment. The AUA MBA programme is distinctive in design, incorporating spiritual and ethical values to balance professional competencies.

Since management techniques quickly become obsolete, we focus on developing versatility through critical thinking, analytical and applied research skills, creativity, and innovation while upholding high standards for professional integrity and ethics. The programme emphasises three of the most fundamental aspects of business administration: strategic thinking, functional effectiveness and effective decision-making. To this end, every course in the programme offers opportunities to develop decision-making skills in practical situations.

Expected Learning Outcomes

By the end of the programme, MBA graduates will:

1. Have functional knowledge and insight that can be applied from a management perspective to address cross disciplinary issues.
2. Become analytical problem solvers and critical thinkers, including being able to analyse uncertain situations, and being able to utilise facts and evidence in drawing conclusions.
3. Have a global perspective and work effectively with others in a work setting involving cultural and demographic diversity.
4. Have leadership, teamwork and communication skills.
5. Have the ability to use technology and manage information to adapt to changing conditions.

6. Develop positive values and moral courage consistent with a biblical world view for personal and professional life.
7. Become lifelong learners of the skills and competencies necessary to successfully manage people and other institutional resources in a dynamic environment.
8. Capability to develop and conduct independent research to solve business problems using either qualitative or quantitative approaches

MBA Admission Requirements

1. Applicants must have a bachelor’s degree from a recognised university with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation.
2. Applicants with a non business administration bachelor’s degree will be required to take prerequisites.
3. Submit contact details of referees for two recommendations to be completed online: one from a religious leader and one from your previous university or from your employing organization. The applicant should seek the consent of the referees before submitting their details on the online application form.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in English.
5. Submit a written personal Statement of Purpose explaining the motivation to take an MBA at AUA.

MBA Programme Prerequisites

Students seeking admission into the MBA programme with an undergraduate degree other than Business Administration must take the following prerequisites and earn a grade of C or better in each of the following undergraduate courses or their equivalents:

- Principles of Accounting
- Business Statistics
- Business Economics
- Principles of Management

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate with a Master of Business Administration, a student is required to:

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 45 credits.
2. Maintain a minimum CGPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale).
3. Complete a project/thesis and attain a pass grade of C+.
4. Submit the required bound copies of the research project/thesis.

MASTER OF ARTS IN LEADERSHIP

Programme Coordinator: Musa Nyakora, PhD

The Master of Arts in Leadership (MA Leadership) programme is an interdisciplinary, collaborative programme designed to meet the needs of mid-career leaders.

It provides an innovative and highly flexible approach to self-motivated learners to pursue a degree in the context of a learning community. As an interdisciplinary programme, it is open to qualified individuals with a variety of professional backgrounds, including church administration, healthcare, business, public sector, and educational administration.

Programme Philosophy

The leadership development programme that the Adventist University of Africa offers an interdisciplinary programme, which draws from the resources of the School of Postgraduate Studies, particularly, from management science, education, health, and research methodology. It also draws from the resources of the Seminary for the enhancement of its philosophical and fiduciary strand.

Philosophically, the leadership programme is undergirded by the belief that God is the Creator of the universe, and the Sustainer of life. Moreover, the same God is the Redeemer of human beings. This God has commissioned us to advance His work of reconciling human beings to Himself, and thus, restoring the image of God to humanity in preparation for His return to take His people where He is. Education is the work of a lifetime to achieve God's redemptive agenda. Seventh-day Adventists believe that education is preparation "for active life that is marked by excellence," and this understanding drives the leadership development programme at AUA.

In a way, the leadership programme is the apex of the educational construct at AUA because while all AUA programmes are intended to enhance the leadership capacity and potential in Africa, the leadership programme is specific about leadership development. Moreover, the leadership development programme at AUA is also driven by the biblical benchmark for education. This means that the journey of academic excellence, professional proficiency, and spiritual growth is paramount. "Higher than the highest human thought can reach is God's ideal for His children" (Ellen G. White, 1903, p.18). Leadership is a programme that seeks to develop competencies for giving direction to people, casting and expanding the vision of the people, and formulating pertinent strategies for developing people. It is a programme that enhances the life of faith in God and respect for the dignity and value of every human being, and helps human beings grow and develop fully to their God-given potential. The programme is intended to nurture thinkers, rather than mere reflectors of other people's thoughts. It promotes loving service, rather than selfish ambition.

Expected Learning Outcomes

The desired learning outcomes of the AUA leadership programme are broadly stated below. By the end of the learning experience, the graduate should be:

1. Able to integrate knowledge and theory to be applied to practical realities of the situation where leadership competencies are needed.
2. Able to critically evaluate various leadership models, philosophies, strategies and theories that are used by various leaders in a contemporary cultural landscape.
3. Equipped with tools to analyse knotty challenges, which hinder authentic leadership formation in African settings.
4. Able to engage in critical appraisal of what is different from their beliefs with a view to enhancing productive mutuality within the community of scholars who are different in culture, ethnicity, gender, nationality, race, and religion.

Admission Requirements

1. Bachelor's degree with from an accredited university a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation.
2. Applicant should be in active service at the time of application.
3. Previous work experience in leadership is highly desirable.
4. Two recommendations completed online: One from a religious leader and one from your previous university or from your employing organization. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
5. Demonstrate proficiency in English.

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate with a Master of Arts in Leadership, a student is required to:

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 41 credits.
2. Maintain a minimum CGPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale).
3. Submit the required bound copies of the research project/thesis.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN LEADERSHIP

Programme Coordinator: Prof. Musa Nyakora, PhD

Programme Philosophy

The PhD programme is solidly based on the Seventh-day Adventist philosophy of holistic education, emphasizing the effective integration of faith and learning. The programme implements the curriculum with three core values: integrity, respect and love. These core values provide students with the tools to meet the demands of complex and changing church, business and health environments.

The foundations of the PhD programme are built on principles from Scripture and world-class sources on leadership, including studies in leadership philosophy, practice, and style. This will equip the reflective practitioner and ground his/her knowledge to African realities without neglecting the competencies needed for global leadership. The result is graduates who are contextually relevant and globally functional. Such graduates will give effective leadership on the local level in their communities and countries. At the same time, graduates will be comfortable and confident enough to occupy a position at the global level in order to enhance the synergy of the Church, community and society.

Expected Learning Outcomes of the Areas of Specialization

Students in the PhD programme can choose an area of Specialization that meets their interests and professional goals. Each area of Specialization is linked to the overall programme goals and the expected learning outcomes by five competencies that graduates will exhibit. The competencies form a programmatic framework, and are:

1. Self-Development
2. Interpersonal Development
3. Leadership and Organizational Development
4. Research and Scholarship Development
5. Elective Development

Expected Learning Outcomes for Specialization in Church Ministry Leadership:

3. Craft a leadership development matrix, which facilitates awareness of God's redemptive agenda in the student's personal and professional life. (Competency: Self-Development)

4. Apply leadership principles drawn from Scripture, leadership theory and theology to specific realities in Africa so that people can experience holistic growth in grace. (Competency: Research and Scholarship Development)

Expected Learning Outcomes for Specialization in Business and Not-for-Profit Leadership

After completing this Specialization, the student will be able to:

1. Formulate policies, implement procedures and operationalize activities for the purposes of efficiency and effectiveness of sector specific. (Competency: Leadership and Organizational Development)
2. Demonstrate a mastery of business enterprises, public undertaking and/or non-governmental sectors operation with a view to satisfy clients within the confines in which they operate. (Competency: Leadership and Organizational Development/Elective Development)
3. Acquire leadership skills and competencies that will enable the student to analyse the nature and characteristics of organizational growth and development. (Competency: Self-Development; Research and Scholarship Development)
4. Judge and accept personal responsibility for any ethical and/or moral malpractice that may arise from their negligence and/or non-performing behaviour in the workplace. (Competency: Interpersonal Development)

Expected Learning Outcomes for Specialization in Public Health Leadership

After completing this Specialization, the student will be able to:

1. Apply economic and organizational principles to public health leadership in communication, public relations, and other key emerging issues in the profession. (Competency: Leadership and Organizational Development; Interpersonal Development)
2. Utilize critical thinking and assessment skills in order to analyse public health agencies, programmes, policies and issues. (Competency: Leadership and Organizational Development; Elective Development)
3. Demonstrate skills needed for advanced competencies, sound leadership, and decision-making, including the applications of ethics and professionalism. (Competency: Self-Development; Research and Scholarship Development)
4. Evaluate the impact of policies, legislation, and cultural differences on populations and individuals in order to interact effectively and professionally with persons from diverse backgrounds. (Competency: Self-Development; Interpersonal Development; Electives Development)

Admission Requirements

In addition to the general admission requirements of the University, the applicant should also satisfy the following:

1. A Master's degree in Leadership or its equivalent from an accredited university with and a minimum Cumulative Grade Point Average (CGPA) of 3.33 (on a 4-point system). Applicants with a CGPA of 3.00-3.32 may be admitted on probation status and take classes in the PhD Leadership programme. After one session, if the student's CGPA is 3.33 or above, they will be regularised; if the CGPA is less than 3.33, the student will have to discontinue the programme due to academic deficiency.

2. Have three Recommendations completed online: One from a religious leader, one from your previous university and from your employing organization. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
3. A statement of purpose, career goals and commitment to academic excellence is required (five pages).
4. Successful completion of at least six credits of coursework in research and statistics at the postgraduate level. This requirement is in addition to the completed and accepted thesis/project done at the postgraduate level.
5. Please note that an applicant is expected to send his/her signed soft copy thesis or project to admissions@aua.ac.ke for committee evaluation before admission into the programme.
6. Must demonstrate proficiency in English.

Graduation requirements

A student in the programme will qualify for graduation only after he/she has:

Message from the Dean

The study of theology is the highest calling in this world, and being a pastor is the noblest profession. Theology has been a crucial subject in universities for a long time and continues to hold a vital position in shaping individuals, communities, and society as a whole. Through the study of theology, individuals are able to gain a deeper understanding of their own beliefs, become more effective leaders, and address important social and moral issues.

However, the ultimate goal of theological education goes beyond personal development or community improvement. The ultimate objective is to gain salvation and to lead others towards salvation. As E. G. White once said, "The knowledge of God is the essential education, and this knowledge every true worker will make it his constant study to obtain."

For those who feel a calling to study the scripture, to bring the message of salvation to those in need, and to proclaim the Three Angels' message to the ends of the earth, the Theological Seminary of AUA provides the perfect opportunity. Students at the Seminary receive the necessary knowledge and training they need to fulfill their mission, through comprehensive courses and hands-on experience. If you are looking to answer your calling and take the first step towards a lifetime of service to God and people, the Theological Seminary of AUA is the place for you.

MISSION, VISION, OBJECTIVES AND GRADUATE PROFILE

Mission Statement

The Theological Seminary is an educational community committed to equipping faithful, resourceful, spiritual and intellectual leaders to engage in declaring God's saving grace and making disciples of all nations in the context of the everlasting gospel of Revelation 14.

Vision Statement

The Seminary endeavours to be internationally acknowledged for its commitment to excellence and faithfulness in providing biblical, theological and missiological education, which wholistically prepares men and women to embrace and engage in the diverse task of Christian mission.

Objectives

The following core objectives guide the Seminary:

1. Uphold the Bible as the authoritative word of God and be a leading voice by equipping men and women with sound hermeneutical principles for biblical interpretation and learning.
2. Promote a stimulating academic and professional environment that promotes the development of critical but responsible appraisal of different belief systems and worldviews.
3. Develop theological, religious and practical skills necessary for effective ministry and leadership in all phases of church life, Christian ministries, and callings at the local and global level.
4. Provide the Church and society with proficient, well-motivated and committed workers.
5. Offer a platform where an intellectual and spiritual understanding of religion, ethics and morality may be pursued within the context of the Bible as the foundational and fundamental word of God.
6. Foster a cosmopolitan atmosphere that engenders synergy, productive mutuality, a camaraderie that affirms human dignity, diversity and value.
7. Cultivate an interest in personal spirituality, which could influence the formation of a solid spiritual, service and mission-oriented seminary community.
8. Offer advanced skills, techniques, and approaches for conducting independent research that can be utilized in the graduate's ministry practice in preaching, teaching, writing, and leadership.
9. Continuously improve the quality of learning and teaching through the continuous self-improvement of faculty and students and seeking all necessary accreditations and collaborations.

Profile of Seminary Graduate

Upon completion of their respective degree programmes, graduates of the Theological Seminary would be able to demonstrate the following skills and competencies:

1. Engage in sound hermeneutical principles for biblical interpretation and learning.
2. Promote a vibrant academic and professional environment that provides for the development of a critical but responsible appraisal of different belief systems and worldviews.
3. Demonstrate theological, religious and practical skills necessary for effective ministry and leadership in all phases of church life, Christian ministries, and callings at the local and global level.
4. Serve as proficient, well-motivated and committed workers in Church and society.
5. Create a platform where an intellectual and spiritual understanding of religion, ethics and morality may be pursued within the context of the Bible as the foundational and fundamental word of God.
6. Serve in a cosmopolitan atmosphere and actively engender synergy, productive mutuality, a camaraderie that affirms human dignity, diversity and value.
7. Practice and promote personal biblical spirituality, which could influence the formation of strong spiritual, service and mission-oriented communities.
8. Utilize advanced skills, techniques and approaches for conducting independent research that can be applied in the graduate's practice of ministry in preaching, teaching, writing and leadership.
9. Inculcate the discipline of continuously learning and teaching through sustained self-improvement.

MASTER OF ARTS IN PASTORAL THEOLOGY (MAPTH)

Programme Coordinator: Davidson Razafiarivony, PhD

Introduction

The Master of Arts in Pastoral Theology (MAPTh) is a professional degree programme designed for pastors with experience in the field of ministry, who fulfil diverse ministerial functions of the Church, including various leadership roles which require precise and critical thinking, wise judgment, effective communication abilities, integrity in all actions, and recognition of opportunities for service. It equips the students with appropriate theological knowledge, advanced pastoral skills, and biblical insights to advance the objectives of the Church. Deep spiritual commitment, pastoral formation and ethical orientation are strongly emphasized characteristics of this programme.

Effective ministry demands a solid theological foundation grounded in unchanging biblical doctrines and dynamic methods of an effective presentation. Therefore, this programme helps students formulate and apply biblically sound approaches to ministry and mission and uphold the foundation of a commitment to traditional biblical Christianity in the context of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Africa. It also focuses on an integrated theology and philosophy of faithfulness to God and Scripture, objectivity in research, and integrity in relationships.

The programme seeks to prepare graduates who possess theological knowledge, ethical and spiritual values, communication competence, pastoral skills, and analytical thinking for both ministry and leadership to contribute effectively to their homes, churches, communities, and institutions. Transmitting this foundational biblical heritage—along with an appropriate level of knowledge and skills—forms the essential purpose of the Pastoral Theology Programme at the Adventist University of Africa.

Objectives

The main objectives of the MA in Pastoral Theology programme are the following:

1. To develop ministry professionals who manifest the depth of spiritual and theological insights, advanced competency, academic excellence, and professional leadership skills.
2. To develop ministry professionals with exceptional service in pastoral or organizational ministry leadership within the unique context of the African and global Church.
3. To help participants acquire knowledge of current issues related to ministry research, engagement in the evangelism, church growth, and nurture through sociological and spiritual aspects.

4. To help participants integrate their spiritual and theological knowledge into the practice of ministry.
5. To help participants learn to evaluate ministerial practices through theological reflection and a biblical model of servant leadership.
6. To help participants learn to use appropriate tools to analyse the needs of churches and communities and develop competencies contributing to the strengthening of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.
7. To raise the level and effectiveness of the ministers at a time of rapid membership growth in numbers and sophistication.
8. To help identify excellent pastoral practitioners who are also outstanding students who could be encouraged to consider further studies.

Expected Learning Outcomes

Upon the successful completion of this programme, the student will be able to:

1. Apply learned skills of superior and forward-looking approaches to the practice of ministry and mission.
2. Have advanced knowledge of Biblical and Theological studies.
3. Understand the significant events, developments, and intellectual features in global and African settings through the Bible's prism.
4. Articulate a theology of pastoral ministry within the context of pastoral practice.
5. Provide dynamic pastoral ministry and leadership in the Christian community.
6. Use appropriate tools to analyse the needs of churches and communities.
7. Express in the practice of ministry and ministry of the Word a Seventh-day Adventist worldview and biblical perspective.
8. Understand basic research methodology applicable to the field of pastoral/leadership ministry.
9. Acquire academic skills in research and writing
10. Respect human diversity and each person's uniqueness as one created by God, including religion, race, culture, and gender.

Admission Requirements

In addition to the general requirements of the University for admission, MAPTh applicants must:

1. Have a bachelor's degree in Theology/Religion from an accredited university with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation.
2. Have a minimum of 4-full years of experience in Pastoral/Christian ministry or related profession.

MASTER OF ARTS IN MISSIOLOGY

Program Coordinator: Leendert Brouwer, ThD

Introduction

The MA in Mission Studies has been designed to equip pastors and other ministry workers in developing expertise in Missiology. With the challenges brought about by local and global changes and transformations on the continent, mission now requires specialized training. The programme offers two majors, namely Islamic Ministry and African Traditional Religion. These two majors reflect areas of significant importance in the mission of the Christian Church in Africa. Each area represents unique challenges that require specialized knowledge, skills and attitudes.

In line with the philosophy of AUA as a Seventh-day Adventist educational Institution, the programme emphasizes the gospel commission to make disciples of all nations in view of redemption and restoration of the image of God in human beings.

Objectives

The programme is designed to provide needed preparation for a more effective ministry. Upon successful completion of the programme requirements, the students will be able to:

1. Identify and evaluate important sources, contributions of key scholars, major schools of thought and emerging trends that shape and sharpen the Church's mission in Africa.
2. Recognize and assess the needs of dominant faith communities that interact with the Christian religion in Africa.
3. Create and implement strategic missionary plans to reach out to non-Christian communities.
4. Provide leadership to the Church in Africa in the area of mission theory, praxis and strategy.

Expected Learning Outcomes

Islamic Ministry. The student graduating with an Islamic Ministry major is expected to:

1. Possess knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes that promote respect and dialogue with peoples of the Islamic faith.
2. Encourage positive communication across the religious/cultural divide.
3. Possess the ability to share the Christian message in the context of the Islamic religious understanding.
4. Based on sound knowledge, the student will develop attitudes of respect, acceptance and appreciation for peoples of the Islamic faith.

African Traditional Religion. The student graduating with the African Traditional Religion major is expected to:

1. Possess knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes that enhance more effective Christian ministry to African people coming from an ATR background.

2. Articulate more clearly the issues that challenge Christian growth and maturity in African Christian believers.
3. Identify sources of dual allegiance among African Christians and respond with appropriate spiritual nurturing strategies that address root causes.
4. Contribute to research in ATR-Christian relations to provide the Church with relevant materials that can be used for Christian witness and the on-going discipling of believers.

Admission Requirements

In addition to the general requirements of the University for admission into Master's programmes Master of Arts in Missiology, applicants must:

1. Bachelor's degree in Theology/Religion from an accredited university with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation. Applicants with post graduate diploma in religion or with religion minor may apply, and admission will be subject to department approval.
2. Two recommendations are required to be completed online: One from the local Church Board and one from your previous university or from the employing organization if employed. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
3. Demonstrate proficiency in English

Graduation Requirements

In order to complete the MA in Missiology, the student must meet the following requirements:

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 45 semester hours.
2. Maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale). The passing grade for each course is a C or above.
3. Successfully complete and submit the Project written according to the University approved standards and approved by the Seminary.

Regulations for Project

For the guidelines on writing the Master of Arts in Missiology Project refer to Theological Seminary Research Handbook. Upon the completion, the project is assessed by the advisor and the second reader and the final grade is calculated according to the following percentage scale: advisor - 60%, co-advisor - 40%.

Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies - MABTS

Programme Coordinator: Melak Tsegaw, PhD

Introduction

The Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies (MABTS) has been designed to assist theologians, pastors and other ministry workers in developing expertise in Scripture, theology, and church history. With the challenges of local and global changes and transformations on the continent, ministry in all its areas now requires specialized training.

The three specializations/majors offered are:

Biblical Studies (New Testament & Old Testament Emphasis)
Biblical Languages
Theological-Historical Studies.

The three majors reflect areas of significant importance in the ministry to the Christian Church. Each area represents unique challenges that require specialized knowledge, skills and attitudes.

Goals and Objectives of the Programme

The Biblical and Theological Studies programme is designed to provide needed preparation for a more effective frontline ecclesiastical ministry and the teaching of religion in schools and colleges.

General Expected Learning Outcomes of the Programme (Graduate Profile)

Upon successful completion of the programme requirements, the students will be able to:

1. Identify and evaluate important sources, contributions of critical scholars, major schools of thought and emerging trends in contemporary cultural, ethical, biblical, linguistic, and theological-historical studies;
2. Demonstrate critical, analytical, and creative thinking in matters of complex biblical, religious and theological systems;
3. Articulate and express coherently biblical and theological concepts and doctrines;
4. Commit to life-long learning, teaching, and communication of religious knowledge;
5. Promote and participate in the mission of the Church both globally and on the continent of Africa.

Specialization Expected Learning Outcomes

Biblical Studies

By the end of the programme, the biblical studies students will be able to:

1. Identify and evaluate important sources, contributions of key scholars, major schools of thought and emerging trends in biblical studies
2. Apply adequate tools for biblical exegesis
3. Analyse and synthesize various theological themes of the Bible
4. Prepare and teach courses in biblical languages at the college level

Biblical Languages

By the end of the programme, the biblical languages students will be able to:

1. Read, write, translate, and interpret such biblical languages as biblical Hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek;
2. Demonstrate abilities to apply biblical languages to the field of biblical exegesis;
3. Prepare and teach courses in biblical languages at the college level.

Theological and Church History Studies

By the end of the programme, the theological-historical studies students will be able to:

1. Identify and evaluate important theological sources, major schools of thought and emerging trends in theological and Church history studies
2. Analyse and synthesize complex theological and historical systems
3. Articulate and express coherently theological concepts and doctrines
4. Prepare and teach theological and Church history courses at secondary school and college levels.

Academic Regulations for the MA in Biblical and Theological Studies

Admission Requirements to MABTS

In addition to the general requirements of the University for admission into Master's programmes, the applicants must:

1. Bachelor's degree in Theology/Religion from an accredited university with at least 72 credits of theology courses and with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%.
2. Two recommendations are required to be completed online: One from the local Church Board and one from your previous university or from the employing organization if employed. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
3. Demonstrate proficiency in English
4. Demonstrate your proficiency in Hebrew and Greek Grammar by means of presenting a recent transcript (not older than three years) or by challenge exams. If an applicant does not fulfil this requirement, he or she will take Hebrew and Greek Grammars as prerequisite courses.

MASTER OF CHAPLAINCY

Programme Coordinator: Israel Kafeero, PhD

Introduction

The Master of Chaplaincy degree is designed for men and women desiring clinical skills and professional preparedness to serve in educational institutions, church departments, healthcare centres, uniformed services, correctional facilities, etc. It is organized to attract students irrespective of their religious affiliation. It equips students to develop competences in the Bible, pastoral counselling, ethical and institutional spiritual matters, servant leadership, as well as research skills.

Objectives

1. Develop the ability to make effective use of the biblical and theological understanding and working methodology for a personal biblical study and its interpretation.
2. Demonstrate the professional development in chaplains' function, skills and knowledge of theology and behavioural science in one's care of persons and groups.
3. Reveal the ability to formulate biblically-based ethical concepts and apply them in different contemporary life situations that the chaplain meets at work and home.
4. Reflect on one's self as person and chaplain in relationship to persons in crisis.
5. Construct a workable knowledge for dealing with legal issues in chaplains' ministry
6. Apply an understanding of and skills for compassionate care to persons of various religious, non-religious, and multicultural backgrounds.

Expected Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of the programme requirements, students would be able to:

1. Demonstrate knowledge of the nature and content of the Bible, a working methodology for biblical study and interpretation, and a precise formulation and personal integration of the student's understanding of the Bible's message.
2. Demonstrate competence in pastoral function, pastoral skills and knowledge of theology and behavioural science.
3. Demonstrate the ability to formulate ethical concepts and to apply them in different contemporary life situations.
4. Reflect on one's self as a person and pastor in relationship to persons in crisis.
5. Demonstrate an understanding of and skills for intensive and extensive pastoral counselling to persons of various religious and non-religious backgrounds.
6. Demonstrate a commitment to a lifelong, intentional process of spiritual development and professional growth.
7. Demonstrate growth in the areas related to God's call that require further development.

Admission Requirements

In addition to the general requirements of the University for admission into the MA in Chaplaincy Ministry, applicants must:

1. Bachelor's degree in Theology/Religion with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or its equivalent grade of 60%. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 or 55% to 59% may be accepted on probation. Applicants with a post graduate diploma in religion or a minor in religion may apply. Admission is subject to department approval.
2. Have a minimum of 2-full years of experience in Pastoral/Christian ministry or related profession.
3. Two recommendations are required to be completed online: One from the local Church Board and one from your previous university or from the employing organization if employed. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in English

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate, a student is required to:

1. Successfully complete a minimum of 52 semester hours (61 for MChap in Healthcare).
2. Maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale). The passing grade for each course is a C or above.
3. Successfully complete and submit the Project/Thesis written according to the University approved standards and approved by the Seminary.

Regulations for Project

For the guidelines on writing the Master of Chaplaincy refer to Theological Seminary Research Handbook. Upon the completion, the project is assessed by the advisor and the second reader and the final grade is calculated according to the following percentage scale: advisor - 60%, co-advisor - 40%.

Curriculum

Fields of Concentration

The Chaplaincy programme has four concentrations that reflect significant importance in the ministry to the Adventist Chaplain. Each area represents unique challenges that require specialized knowledge, skills and attitudes. These concentrations will not be offered simultaneously, and the University at the point of admission, based on students' interest, may decide to select one or two of the following:

Students can take a nine-credit optional course CPE-2.

CPE-1 and CPE-2 are internationally recognized courses taught by a certified Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE) supervisor who has earned a Doctorate in theology or religion or a Master's degree in Theology or Religion with many years of practice experiences as a CPE supervisor.

MASTER OF DIVINITY

Program Coordinator: David Odhiambo, PhD

Introduction

The Master of Divinity (MDiv) degree programme provides basic post-graduate professional preparation for ministry with a broad exposure to all fields of theological study. The programme applies biblical, historical, educational, linguistic, theological, philosophical, ethical, missiological, pastoral, and evangelistic instruction to the practical work of the Church. Practical field experience is a vital part of this programme. The MDiv programme is intended for those who already have an undergraduate background of ministerial studies and those who hold a baccalaureate degree in an area other than religion but want to obtain the basic preparation needed to become pastors or church workers in the Adventist denomination. It is designed to enable practising pastors to pursue a higher degree in the context of a learning community.

Objectives

The objectives of the MDiv programme is to enable students to develop competencies in Bible, church history, doctrine, spiritual formation, as well as servant leadership skills required for local church ministry.

Expected Learning Outcomes of the Programme

Upon graduation, the students will be able to:

1. Describe and use tools and working methodology for biblical study and interpretation, and a clear formulation and personal integration of the student's own understanding of the message of the Bible.
2. Reconstruct the history of the Christian church and see God's working in dealing with His people and how he/she fits in that overall picture.
3. Identify and critically deal with theological issues and challenges that the Church is facing.
4. Perform pastoral care effectively, with skills in expository preaching, communication, counselling, evangelizing, administration and leadership.
5. Use critical thinking skills and research methodology and apply them to enhance the church ministry, to critically evaluate the situation in the church ministry and suggest an adequate solution.
6. Assess his/her calling into the ministry, and make a commitment to a lifelong, intentional process of spiritual development and professional growth.

Admission Requirements for the Programme

In addition to the general requirements of the University for admission into Master's programmes, Master of Divinity applicants must:

1. Have a bachelor's degree, from an accredited university preferably in Theology/Religion or any other Non-Theology/Religion degree with a minimum CGPA of 3.00 on a 4-point scale or equivalent. Applicants with a CGPA of 2.5 to 2.99 (on a 4.00-point scale) or equivalent may be accepted on probation. Applicants with a non-Theology/Religion degree must complete an additional 30 credits of coursework.

2. Provide two recommendations completed online: One from the local Church Board and one from your previous university or from the employing organization if employed. The applicant should seek the consent of the referee before submitting their details.
3. Demonstrate proficiency in English or the language specified for the programme offered.

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate, a student is required to:

1. Complete the required minimum credits based on the admission status. Students admitted with an undergraduate degree in Religion/Theology must complete the minimum of 72 semester hours; students admitted with an undergraduate degree in other areas than Religion/Theology must complete the minimum of 102 semester hours.
2. Maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.75 (on the 4.0 scale). The passing grade for each course is a C or above.
3. Successfully complete and submit the Project/Thesis written according to the University approved standards and approved by the Seminary.

Regulations for Project

For the guidelines on writing the Master of Divinity Project/Thesis refer to Theological Seminary Research Handbook. Upon the completion, the project is assessed by the advisor and the second reader and the final grade is calculated according to the following percentage scale: advisor - 60%, co-advisor - 40%.

DOCTOR OF MINISTRY (DMIN)

Introduction

The Doctor of Ministry is the highest competency level pastoral ministry degree programme primarily designed for the practice of ministry and is oriented toward serving the needs of pastors, mission executives, church leaders, and other ministry professionals. The purpose of this programme is to equip people for a higher-level ability in the practice of ministry and ministerial leadership in the area of applied theology. This is achieved through an experience of further education, which renews the personal life of faith, sharpens ministerial skills, and stimulates growth in understanding the biblical and theological foundations of ministry and mission.

The nine concentrations (i) Chaplaincy; (ii) Church, African Society and Mission; (iii) Church Leadership and Administration; (iv) Discipleship and Biblical Spirituality; (v) Evangelism & Church Growth; (vi) Marriage and Family; (vii) Pastoral Care and Counselling; (viii) Word, Worship and Liturgy; (ix) Youth Ministry, reflect areas of significant importance in the ministry to the Christian Church. Each area represents unique challenges that require specialized knowledge, skills and attitudes. These concentrations are not being offered simultaneously.

Objectives

1. To equip men and women to gain a sound grasp of biblical, theological and theoretical principles that would help the Church fulfil its mission.
2. To provide opportunities to acquire a high level of competency in the skills that pertain to an area of concentration.
3. To foster an environment to contribute to the body of knowledge through research.
4. To provide the necessary tools and skills for identification and implementation of strategies of spreading the Good News of the Gospel to humankind.

General Expected Learning Outcomes

The DMin programme is designed to provide needed preparation for a more effective ministry. Upon successful completion of the programme requirements the students will be able to:

1. Impart practical, theological, and religious knowledge that is culturally and contextually grounded and relevant to the realities on the African continent.
2. Reconstruct the ingredients of African culture in ways that enhance on going Christian formation and transformation of the people of God in Africa.
3. Provide leadership and ministry competencies that enable church reflective practitioners to function efficiently and effectively both in local and global contexts.
4. Enhance theological and spiritual aspects of graduates' life in their professional calling.
5. Advance techniques and approaches for conducting independent research that can be utilized in the graduate's own practice of ministry.

Expected Learning Outcomes for Different Emphases

Chaplaincy. Persons who successfully complete the Chaplaincy emphasis should be able to:

1. Articulate different models of chaplaincy ministry that empower, inform and expand their ministering skills and competencies.
2. Develop research designs and analytical methodologies in the field of Chaplaincy ministry.

Church, African Society and Mission. Persons who pursue the Church, African Society and Mission will be able to:

1. Demonstrate a high-level mastery of mission strategies and methods, with special attention to context, rationale, agencies, effectiveness, limitations, negative side effects, and general applicability of the following strategies that have been used in the history of mission strategy development.
2. Empower the Church to play a more significant role by developing and expanding social institutions like educational, health/medical, nutritional and many other welfare institutions that impact the practical lives of people.

Church Leadership and Administration. Persons who successfully complete the Church Leadership and Administration emphasis should be able to:

1. Demonstrate a sound grasp of biblical, theological and theoretical principals that undergird Christian leadership and their contribution to global ministry.
2. Have skills and competencies in designing systems and structures that create and support positive organizational culture.

Discipleship and Spiritual Formation. Persons who successfully complete the Discipleship and Spiritual Formation emphasis should be able to:

1. Demonstrate a high level of knowledge and skills pertinent to the practice in pastoral care and spiritual leadership within the context of discipleship and spiritual formation in the family, Church, and wider community.
2. Implement the various dimensions of mentoring, practical guidelines and resources for both mentors and mentees, and the theological, theoretical, experiential and practical dimensions of discipleship into a theologically reflective practice of ministry.
3. Formulate one's own "spiritual theology" or "theology of the Christian life" that will inform how to live out one's own relationship with God and how to encourage others to do the same.

Evangelism and Church Growth. Persons who successfully complete the Evangelism and Church Growth emphasis should be able to:

1. Demonstrate expert knowledge of major biblical/historical models of evangelism and Church growth with a special focus on the African context.
2. Create personal and public self-sustaining ministries to reach multi-cultural peoples in African society, drawing on global models and trends.
3. Do research in various areas of evangelism and African Church growth.

Marriage and Family. Persons who successfully complete the Marriage and Family emphasis should be able to:

1. Articulate family systems operations and the critical factors in developing family strengths, skills and programming ideas, which facilitate development.
2. Design and develop programmes for the growth and betterment of marriages and families.
3. Use appropriate skills in coaching couples to experience greater depth of intimacy and sexual fulfilment as well as apply spirituality and religiosity in the management of issues of sex and life.

Pastoral Care and Counselling. Persons who successfully complete the Pastoral Care and Counselling emphasis should be able to:

1. Demonstrate a well-developed understanding of the intricate connection between gender, culture, and spirituality, and the ability to analyze issues regarding spirituality and religion in relation to life events such as religious differences in intimate relationships, deciding on how to raise children, illness and pain, death and dying and learning to live more congruently to one's values.
2. Apply knowledge in various aspects of pastoral counselling and reflect on personal spiritual and theological perspectives and to integrate them into their practice of ministry.

Word, Worship and Liturgy. Persons who successfully complete the Word, Worship and Liturgy emphasis should be able to:

1. Articulate the principles of worship that are rooted in Scripture and Christian experience throughout the ages, and explore and explain African aspects of life that need to be incorporated in word proclamation and liturgical designs.
2. Master and implement principles of thematic and purposeful preaching for specific desired outcomes over a period of time like Christian year.
3. Identify African cultural initiatives in communicating the Good News of the Gospel that are drawn from African narrative theology, proverbs, stories and wisdom.

Youth Ministry. Persons who successfully complete the Youth Ministry emphasis should be able to:

1. Demonstrate a high level of understanding of the principles of conflict resolution and emotional support for at-risk and high-risk youth and young adults, and how to provide crisis intervention and long-term problem-solving skills.
2. Be familiar with writing grant proposals for youth ministry, and able to develop programmes for effective youth evangelism and discipleship.

Admission Requirements for Doctor of Ministry

1. Master's degree from an accredited university in Ministry or Theology, with a minimum GPA of 3.33 on a 4-point scale or 60% grade average. Applicants with a CGPA of 3.0 and 3.32 may be admitted on probationary. After completing one session the student must obtain a GPA of 3.33 to gain regular admission status
2. Have a minimum of 84 credit hours of Religion/Theology at the undergraduate level. Applicants may be required to take appropriate number of prerequisites according to their choice of specialization in DMin. as shall be determined by the Seminary Admissions Committee.

3. Be active in professional ministry for at least 2 – 4 years and demonstrate aptitude and commitment for the gospel ministry.
4. Be ordained or commissioned to the gospel ministry (limited exceptions could be considered).
5. Three recommendations are required to be completed online. One from the local Church Board and one from your previous university and from the employing organization (Conference, Union or Division). The applicant should seek the consent of the referees before submitting their details.
6. Submit a paper (2-4 pages) that provides an applicant's objectives in seeking the degree.
7. Completed successfully a course equivalent to GSEM 607 Documentary Research and Writing.
8. Submit their Master's Thesis/Project or its equivalent. Those applicants who did not do a Thesis/Project on a Master's level must submit a major paper (approximately 50 pages) showing applicant's research competencies.
9. Demonstrate proficiency in English.

Regulations on Credit Transfer in the programme

The Doctor of Ministry programme does not accept credit transfers according to the Commission for University Education (CUE) Policy on credit transfer at doctoral level.

Performance Review

Student progress toward degree completion is reviewed by the Programme Director during the second year of the student's matriculation. If progress is deemed inadequate and it appears that the student will have difficulty completing the programme, the Programme Director will advise the student and recommend corrective action.

Time Limit for Completing the DMin Degree

The duration of the programme is three years. A maximum of ten (10) years to complete the degree from the date of first enrolment. Should extenuating circumstances preclude completion in the extended time frame, a petition may be filed through the Programme Director to the Dean of the Theological Seminary for consideration of an extension.

Dismissal

Students are expected to abide by the regulations set forth by the Adventist University of Africa and the written policies and procedures of their respective departments. The University reserves the right to dismiss a student from a programme for any of the following reasons:

- a. Conduct detrimental to the University or to the welfare of other students.
- b. Conduct that violates the code of academic and/or professional ethics.
- c. Unsatisfactory CGPA (Academic Standing)

Leave of Absence

A student who is unable to register for a course because of a serious illness, personal/professional reasons, physical/mental health issues, or extraordinary job requirements may be granted a leave of absence without penalty. The leave of absence is normally limited to one academic year. The student must inform the Programme Director and the Dean of the Theological Seminary in writing of his/her intention. Students with an absence of one academic year without an approved leave of absence or who extend leave beyond one academic year will be governed by new departmental/programme guidelines upon their return.

Academic Load

The University stipulates the academic load for students in order to prepare them to face the challenges posed by their courses and to enable them earn their degree within the specified period. This is dependent upon two factors: the scholastic ability of the student as reflected by his/her academic history and the time available for study.

- a. Due to extensive reading, independent thinking and individual research required of graduate students, the normal full-time course load is 9-12 credits per semester.
- b. Students who are on probation or have incurred academic deficiencies will be advised to carry lighter loads depending on their situation.

Advancement to Candidacy

Achievement of candidacy status indicates that a student has completed all other programme components and has only his/her dissertation remaining to fulfil the degree requirements. Doctoral students should be developing their doctoral research capabilities throughout the programme in areas, such as dissertation topic development, literature review, research methodology and academic writing skills. Doctoral students are strongly encouraged to make significant progress on their dissertation before concluding their coursework.

Workshops and Seminars/Conferences

Seminars, workshops and conferences entail in-depth and broadening trainings that focus on enhancing the doctoral student's skills. Activities include information sessions, educational presentations, and research courses. It is a requirement of the DMin programme that students participate in this forum and could present their research papers in such forum.

Student Assessment Policy/Criteria

AUA maintains and upholds a policy of student assessment for effectiveness, fairness and transparency in keeping with academic standards.

Students may be assessed on the basis of their coursework, research work or subject examinations or as, in most instances, by a combination of both depending on the nature of the course. Specific modes of assessment may include written examinations, short answer/multiple choice, open book tests, reading reports, research assignments, projects, case studies (biblical, missiological), presentations, etc.

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate, a student is required to:

- Successfully complete a minimum of 12 credit hours of common University courses, 18 credit hours of core courses, and 15 credit hours of research courses (including writing of the Dissertation), thus making a minimum total of 45 credit hours.
- Passing grade for each course to be acceptable for graduation is a B level or above.
- Candidates in the Chaplaincy concentration must have completed at least four units of Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE) with a body recognized and acceptable to the University for such Qualification. Maintain a minimum cumulative CGPA of 3.33 (on the 4.0 scale).
- Publish and provide evidence of at least two articles in referred journals.
- Successfully completed, submitted, and defended the DMin Dissertation

Regulations and Procedures for DMin Dissertation

PHD IN BIBLICAL AND THEOLOGICAL STUDIES

Programme Coordinator: Feliks Poniowski, PhD

Introduction

The PhD programme is solidly based on the Seventh-day Adventist philosophy of wholistic education, emphasizing the effective integration of faith and learning. The programme implements the curriculum with three core values: integrity, respect and love. These core values provide students with the tools to meet the demands of complex and changing church, business and surrounding environments.

The foundations of the PhD programme are built on the basic principles taken from Scripture and world-class resources concerning the specializations of the given programme. It will promote sound methods of biblical, historical, missiological, theological and philosophical scholarship and spread these principles through publications, lectureships, conferences, and symposiums. This will equip the reflective practitioner and ground his/her knowledge to African realities without neglecting the competencies needed for global scholarship. As the final result will be graduates, who are contextually relevant and globally functional. Such graduates will be able to share effective academic leadership on the local level in their communities and countries.

Objectives of the Programme

It is envisaged that the programme will provide skilful graduates to fill the existing scholarship gap within the continent of Africa. Students will be introduced to key elements and aspects, characteristic to the academic research, which can inject a new vision for local, national and global scholarship.

The programme is to apply biblical, historical, educational, linguistic, theological, philosophical, ethical, missiological, pastoral, and evangelistic instruction to the academic research in the educational context. Practical scholarly experience is a vital part of this programme.

The specific goal of the PhD programme is to develop highly educated and committed lifelong scholars, who possess the right knowledge, the ethical values, communication competence and relational skills, independent academic research competences; who know how to use appropriate biblical methodologies, analyze and present findings that may advance knowledge and mission, and analytical thinking so that they may contribute effectively to various educational institutions operated by the Adventist Church in Africa and globally as well as provide services as may be needed in the larger society.

Expected Learning Outcomes of the Programme

The PhD programme will enable students to develop competencies in Biblical studies, church history and systematic theology, world missions as well as servant leadership skills required for any scholar.

In harmony with both the above-mentioned goal, the student, upon completion of the programme will be able to:

- a. Critically analyse the historical backgrounds of the Old and the New Testament and see God's work in dealing with His people and how they fit in that overall picture
- b. Evaluate biblical, theological, and theoretical principles, which undergird academic scholarship concerning all research aspects.
- c. Establish and utilise proper methods of biblical, historical, missiological, theological, and philosophical scholarship and spread these principles through publications, lectureships, conferences, and symposiums.
- d. Analyse the nature and content of research methodology and employ same for biblical-theological, missiological, and historical studies for usefulness to Church, society, and global community.
- e. Provide a foundational platform on which to prepare teachers-scholars and leaders in focused theological fields of study with an appropriate contextual worldview for the Seventh-day Adventist Church, its institutions of higher learning in Africa and around the world.
- f. Practice skills and competencies to teach in areas of expertise, initiate and foster constructive dialogue and relations with other academic communities, and develop an informed global consciousness through various outreach and service programs.
- g. Describe the theological, philosophical, epistemological, and cultural assumptions on which one's theology is based.

Admission requirements

1. A Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies, Master of Divinity or Master of Arts in Missiology or their equivalency from an approved Seminary or University with a minimum Cumulative Grade Point Average (CGPA) of 3.33 on 4-point scale or its equivalency.
2. Applicants with a CGPA of 3.00-3.32 may be admitted on probation status. After one session, if the student's CGPA is 3.33 or above, they will be regularised; if the CGPA is less than 3.33, the student will have to discontinue the programme due to academic deficiency.
3. Successful completion of at least six (6) credits of coursework in research at the postgraduate level. This requirement is in addition to the completed and accepted thesis/project done at the postgraduate level.
4. A minimum of 2 full years of relevant work/Church ministry experience.
5. A statement of purpose, career goals and commitment to academic excellence is required. This statement should be a maximum of five (5) pages, typed, double-spaced. It should be submitted together with the other application materials.
6. Have three Recommendations completed online (one professional recommendation, one academic recommendation, and one character recommendation). The applicant should seek the consent of the referees before submitting their details.

7. Demonstrate proficiency in English.
8. Meet any other requirements as shall be determined by the Admission Committee of the Seminary.

Prerequisites

1. Applicants shall be required to take appropriate number of prerequisites in the chosen area of specialization, as may be determined by the PhD programme Committee. The prerequisites shall be accepted from the area of concentration based on the courses taken at the graduate level based on the course code (NTST/OTST/THST/MSSN).
2. Applicants must present the thesis written for that master's programme for evaluation of research and writing skills. In case the previous university did not require a written thesis for the master's programme, the applicant must demonstrate research and writing abilities by presenting an acceptable 80-page research paper as a thesis equivalent.
3. Applicants must present proof of having successfully taken Intermediate Biblical Hebrew and Intermediate Biblical Greek in the Master's transcript during a period of maximum 6 years before applying to the PhD programme. Alternatively, the applicant must demonstrate proficiency in Biblical Hebrew and Greek languages either by challenge examinations or by taking OTST 558 Readings in Hebrew Old Testament and NTST 558 Readings in Greek New Testament courses as prerequisites.
4. Modern languages (theological German or French).

Areas of Specialization:

Each PhD in Biblical and Theological Studies candidate will choose one area of specialization from the following:

- Biblical Studies
 - Old Testament Studies
 - New Testament Studies
- Theological-Historical Studies
 - Theological Studies
 - Historical Studies
- Applied Theology
 - World Mission
 - Church Ministry

Cognates

In addition to a specialization, students could choose a cognate from a different field of study as follows:

- Biblical Studies
 - Old Testament Studies
 - New Testament Studies

- Theological-Historical Studies
 - Theological Studies
 - Historical Studies
- Applied Theology
 - Church Ministry
 - World Mission

Phases and Completion of the Programme

There are three phases to the PhD degree. The programme has in total 64 semester credits structured as follows:

Coursework (48 credits)

The student must complete the required 48 credits of coursework with a minimum CGPA of 3.33.

Comprehensive Exams –5 exams, taken after coursework is complete (0 credits). Comprehensive exams are counted for study load purposes as equivalent to 6 credits. Preparation represents 3-5 months of study for the examination. Four 6-hour examinations will be taken in the specialization area, and one 6-hour examination in the cognate. Comprehensive examinations are normally given one each week over five weeks.

The dissertation is 16 credits and typically takes 1-2 years to write.

Additional time must be taken into consideration if a student needs to complete prerequisites before entering the programme including meeting Biblical Languages and English language proficiency requirements.

For students on a regular status, the time required to complete the programme shall be a minimum of four academic years or eight semesters (Course work without prerequisites is about 24 months. Preparation for comprehensive exams: 3 – 6 months. Dissertation writing about 18-24 months).

Graduation Requirements

In order to graduate, a student is required to:

- a. Successfully complete the required number of semester credits (Total of 64 credits, which includes 48 credits for a course work).
- b. Maintain a minimum CGPA of 3.33 (on the 4.0 scale). The passing grade for all courses is B.
- c. Successfully pass comprehensive examinations.
- d. Publish and provide evidence of at least two articles in peer-reviewed journals.
- e. Successfully complete, submit, and defend the PhD Dissertation.

Classification of Degrees is not applicable to this terminal degree programme.

Description and Rationale of Dissertation Requirements

The culmination of the PhD programme is the dissertation that demonstrates the student's mastery and integration of theory and application gained during his/her studies. The research work takes the form of a theological-exegetical study, analytical or philosophical, conducted by the student relevant to the programme. The dissertation must constitute a definite contribution to knowledge. So, after the completion of the coursework and successful passing of the Comprehensive Examination, the school will verify if the student possesses the requisite skill, aptitude, and knowledge to pursue a PhD dissertation research work which constitute 16 credits in the curriculum. This is done through series of colloquium organized by the university. The dissertation proposal represents the student's first attempt at seriously explaining what he/she proposes to do as he/she undertakes the research work.

The proposal is written in consultation with faculty supervisor which must be approved by the Dissertation Committee of the programme.

The dissertation must conform to University regulations and specifications with regard to format and method of preparation, which are found in the AUA Standard for Written Work. This document can be found on the AUA website under the "Selected Regulations and Procedures for PhD Dissertation."

Regulations for Comprehensive Examinations

Overall Factors

a. Eligibility: A student must complete the minimum course requirements (48 credits), complete all prerequisites, if required, and maintain the CGPA minimum of 3.33 (4.0 scale) before taking the comprehensive examinations.

b. Scheduling: Within a five-week period, the student must pass five comprehensive examinations that are scheduled according to the calendar provided by the PhD Programme's Office. While examinations are generally proctored once a week, students may arrange, when applying for comprehensive examinations, to take two examinations per week. All requests should be in writing. Comprehensive examinations are generally given twice yearly, one per semester.

c. Purpose: The comprehensive examinations assess the student's proficiency in major and cognate areas of study, familiarity with pertinent literature, and abilities of analysis and criticism.

d. Areas: Of the five comprehensive examinations, four cover the major area of concentration and one is in the cognate area. In the major area, the student is naturally expected to demonstrate greater proficiency than in the cognate area.

Application for Comprehensive Examinations

Students must apply to take their comprehensive examinations no later than the beginning of the semester preceding the examinations.

Format

At least three of the exams must be in the usual written format, each lasting about six hours. Two comprehensive examinations may be given in the take-home format. The take-home format calls for writing a research paper on an assigned topic in a maximum of one week and in accordance with the style required in "Adventist University of Africa Standards for Written Work."

Procedure for Planning the Comprehensive Examinations

By the end of the third semester of full-time coursework, the student and the Chair of his or her Doctoral Committee should begin the preparation work.

It is highly recommended that a student's examination preparation includes perusal of former comprehensive examinations in the PhD Programme's Office, by appointment with the Administrative Assistant. A student may request to type his or her comprehensive examinations on a computer supplied by the PhD Programme's Office for this purpose.

Evaluation of the Comprehensive Examinations

a. Exam Results: Comprehensive examinations are evaluated by those who have prepared them. Grading must normally be completed within seven days after the end of the examination period. The Coordinator of the PhD Programme informs the student of the exam results, following the administration and evaluation of the last examination.

b. Oral Examinations: Following evaluation of all comprehensive examination, if a student did not demonstrate sufficient level of knowledge or skills, the examiner(s) may request that the student be required to take an additional oral examination of two hours or less as part of the comprehensive examinations. The Coordinator of the PhD Programme or someone appointed by the Coordinator arranges for and chairs the oral exam session, which is normally conducted within fourteen days after the last regular comprehensive examination is administered.

Students required to take oral examinations are permitted to look at (but not copy) the questions (but not answers) belonging to the relevant regular exams that they have completed.

Retakes: Students who fail no more than two comprehensive examinations must retake them no earlier than three months and no later than nine months after taking the initial examinations. Students who fail three or more comprehensive examinations must repeat all five of them no earlier than six months and no later than twelve months after the initial examinations.

Any individual examination area may be retaken once. A second failure in the same subject results in termination from the PhD in Religious Studies programme.

Advancement to Candidacy

Once a student has successfully completed the comprehensive examinations, he or she is formally advanced to PhD candidacy by the PhD Committee. This status, of which the student is notified by letter from the Coordinator of the PhD Programme, means that the student is regarded as qualified to write a PhD dissertation.

Regulations for Dissertation*Before the Dissertation Proposala. Consideration of Topic and Committee*

Selecting and getting approval for a dissertation topic and committee is a process that does not have a regular progression of steps. Consideration of the dissertation topic and selection of the dissertation chair and other members of the Doctoral Committee take place simultaneously. Some students may select a topic before approaching faculty members to be on the committee, while others approach faculty first and together select a topic. Discussion of ideas for potential dissertation topics with several faculty members helps the student in selecting a topic and in choosing a committee. As ideas about topics and committee members crystalize, the student will want to discuss them with his or her adviser and department chair.

Therefore, students who enroll in the PhD programme shall be guided by his assigned research committee to identify a viable research topic/area that can be adequately managed by both the student, and his advising committee in order for the students not be disappointed and waste much time and money. Students should talk frankly with their advisers at the time of admission to the programme if they have a specific dissertation topic in mind. c. Doctoral Committee Composition: The Dissertation Committee consists of a minimum of three members including the Chair. The student could select members and a Chair on the basis of each member's potential contribution to the proposed dissertation. The student must have at least two members who are familiar with the content (literature) in the area of the dissertation. At least two of the committee should be from the student's primary area of concentration and it is strongly recommended that at least one of the members be from the student's cognate area. The Chair of the Dissertation Committee carries the primary responsibility for guiding the student through his or her dissertation and is the person with whom the student works most closely. The first requirement for a Doctoral Committee Chair is familiarity with the content and/or methodology of a potential topic. Failure to find a faculty member who can competently guide the research means changing the topic. An easy, working relationship with the committee Chair is most important.

b. Dissertation Topic

The student must relate the dissertation topic to his or her field of specialized study, to an area of academic strength in which he or she can conduct research responsibly, and to the AUA resources available for the support of the research, such as faculty guidance and library holdings (or access to relevant documents).

If students enroll in the PhD programme with the intention of researching an area outside the university's competence, they will be disappointed and waste much time and money. Students should talk frankly with their advisers at the time of admission to the programme if they have a specific dissertation topic in mind.

After each member of the committee has agreed to serve, the student should prepare a formal statement of the dissertation topic for the committee. Consult with the committee chair for the presentation format appropriate to the proposed research. Regardless of the nature, the topic proposal should include: the nature of the topic, the problem, the reason the student considers the area important, references to literature, and a brief statement about proposed methodology in the research. After sharing this brief statement (1-2 pages) with the committee Chair, and probably rewriting it, the student should present the statement to the other committee members and request the committee Chair to call a meeting to consider the approval of the topic.

c. Call of Committee to Vote on the Topic and Submit Request Form for Approval

Fill out the "Request for Doctoral Dissertation Committee and Topic Approval" Form. When Doctoral Committee meets, the student must convince the members of the appropriateness of his or her topic and of his or her ability to carry out the research. If the Doctoral Committee approves, they sign the "Request for Doctoral Dissertation Committee and Topic Approval" form and submit it to the student's department Chair and the PhD Programme's Office for approval.

d. After Topic Approval

Only after approval of the topic is the student ready to begin the dissertation proposal. The student must finish the proposal and have it accepted by his or her Doctoral Committee and the PhD Committee before formal work on the dissertation begins.

Dissertation Proposal

a. Purpose of the Dissertation Proposal

The dissertation proposal is designed to show the purpose and organization of the student's research. The proposal gives the student's Doctoral Committee and PhD Committee enough information to determine whether the topic the student is investigating and the procedures he or she will be using will be appropriate. Approval of the dissertation proposal authorizes the student to begin writing the dissertation.

b. Structure

A dissertation proposal is comprised of a number of sections that should be in an order and format appropriate to the direction and contents of the proposed study. Generally, the proposal consists of a proposed topic or title, a brief introduction to the topic, a brief literature review, a brief statement of the problem, purpose/objectives of the proposed study, scope of the study, research methods and procedures for participant recruitment and data collection, and tentative references of supporting sources.

c. Style

In both the proposal and the dissertation, the student is to follow a recent edition of Turabian's, A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, with exceptions as described in the latest edition of "AUA Standards for Written Work."

Writing the Dissertation

a. Content, Purpose, and Quality of the Dissertation Must:

1. Reveal the student's familiarity with the literature pertinent to the dissertation.
2. Demonstrate the student's competence to conduct independent research.
3. Present a logically organized and readable account of the investigation, findings, conclusions, and implications.
4. The dissertation should focus on a clearly defined problem of strong importance to the profession and employ well-planned and executed acceptable research techniques.
5. Make an original contribution to scholarship.

b. Advising

The Chair of the student's Doctoral Committee or, in special cases, a committee member designated by the PhD Committee, guides the candidate in the research. A responsibility of the Chair as prime mentor is to maintain regular contact and remain available for communication by e-mail during long absences from AUA.

The other members of the student's Doctoral Committee are available for consultation, and the Chair involves them in the dissertation progress on a chapter-by-chapter and/or section-by-section basis. As a rule, one-two years or more are needed for dissertation preparation. The candidate should regularly update the members of the Doctoral Committee regarding his or her progress. It is vital that the student work in the closest possible relationship with his or her committee Chair as he or she begins the dissertation. The first task is to complete the literature review begun in the proposal. If there is any question about editorial work, grammar, or English, consult with an editor before the presentation of the material to the committee Chair.

c. Dissertation Credit:

After the student passes the comprehensive examinations, he or she registers for 16 units of dissertation credit (GSEM995) within the next two years. If the student has registered for 16 dissertation credits and has not defended his or her dissertation, it is still necessary for the student to be registered as a current student. Therefore, each semester the student must either register for either dissertation credit or dissertation continuation until the dissertation is defended. Dissertation. Thus, for any semester after completion of the comprehensive examinations in which the candidate does not register for credit, he or she registers for GSEM888 (Continuation) and pays a nominal continuation fee. If the student is off campus during the dissertation continuation period, the Secretary of the PhD Programme will help complete this process as needed and requested by the student.

d. Length

The dissertation is typically between 250 and 300 pages in length.

e. Preliminary Check

As soon as one chapter of the dissertation is written and approved by the student's Doctoral Committee, the Dissertation Secretary checks it. This procedure helps avoid later delays, problems, and expense. The Dissertation Secretary is responsible for assuring the conformity of dissertations to the University's Standards for Written Work. A brief visit with the Dissertation Secretary as the student begins writing his/her dissertation will alert to possible problems.

The Dissertation Secretary should check each chapter as soon as it has been approved by the student's Doctoral Committee. This early check enables the Dissertation Secretary to spot possible errors or weak areas, a procedure that can save time and money since the final acceptance of the dissertation requires the Dissertation Secretary's signature. Formatting is set by Adventist University of Africa.

f. Abstract

When the dissertation is complete, but prior to submitting it to the Dissertation Secretary, the student must prepare an abstract of 350 words maximum. The abstract contains a statement of the problem, the nature of the research (or procedure used), a brief chapter-by-chapter summary of the work done and conclusions reached, and a statement (in a sentence or two) of the new contribution of the dissertation to the field of study. The abstract must be succinct, clear, cohesive, logical, and sufficiently informative to give an overview of the dissertation to scholars in the field and to readers somewhat unfamiliar with the topic.

Oral Defense of Dissertation

a. Purpose

The dissertation defence is to test the student's ability to defend the concepts and data of the dissertation; and to give the student an opportunity to show his or her understanding of the larger context in which the dissertation lies.

b. Dissertation Defense Committee

The student's Dissertation Defense Committee consists of five persons: the student's Doctoral Committee, augmented by two scholars appointed by the Director of the PhD Programme. One of these additional persons, external examiner, may be from another institution. The two additional members are usually appointed at least six weeks prior to the oral defense so that they can thoroughly read the completed dissertation, review the field of study, and prepare questions for the oral defense.

c. Submission of Dissertation for Oral Defence

When the dissertation is complete and approved for defense by the student's Doctoral Committee and Dissertation Secretary, the candidate must submit a copy of the dissertation to the Director of the PhD Programme for approval before making copies for distribution to the members of the Dissertation Defense Committee. The PhD Programme's Office will secure signatures from the student's Doctoral Committee, verifying readiness for defense. The candidate must submit six copies of both the abstract and the dissertation, produced in acceptable style, format, and language, to the Director of the PhD Programme no later than six weeks before the oral dissertation defence and ten weeks before commencement weekend. The Director is responsible for supervising immediate distribution of these copies to the members of the Dissertation Defence Committee. The PhD Programme's Secretary prepares the approval page of the dissertation, on which the members of the Dissertation Defence Committee are to place their signatures following successful completion of the oral dissertation defence, and which the Dean of the Theological Seminary signs when the dissertation receives its final approval from the Dissertation Secretary and the Director of the PhD programme.

a. Timing and Announcement of Oral Defence:

The oral defense usually does not take place earlier than twelve months after the student has passed the comprehensive examinations, and it is to be held no later than four weeks before the doctoral degree is to be conferred. The oral defense is publicly announced by the Director of the PhD Programme's at least two weeks before the date of the defense. No defense is scheduled during the final two weeks of a term or during the interim between regular semesters.

The PhD Programme's Office reserves the right to schedule defences according to available time and faculty availability. It is advisable to defend during the semester, at least three weeks before the annual timelines that are provided for the for the submission of work to for editing by the University's Research Office.

b. Approval of Dissertation for Defence

Before finalization of the defense date, the student's committee must indicate by signature that the dissertation is "ready to defend." Doctoral Committee members should contact the PhD Programme's Office to provide their signatures of approval 8 weeks prior to defense, including external examiner's satisfaction. Faculty who are off campus may email the PhD Programme's Office in lieu of a signature.

c. Observers at Oral Defence

Individuals wishing to attend the oral defense as observers must request permission through the PhD Programme's Office. The candidate may submit a request to the Director of the PhD Programme to invite guests as observers.

d. Procedures Governing Oral Defence

Two hours are scheduled for the oral defense, which takes place before the Dissertation Defense Committee, with the Director of the PhD Programme or his designee presiding. The Director also chairs the executive session that follows the defense, but without voting. The oral defence concentrates on the dissertation and is designed to test the candidate's ability to defend its concepts and data and to examine significant material related to it. The candidate is expected to demonstrate an understanding of the larger context of his or her subject. While the examiners begin with previously prepared questions, it is expected that as the defence progresses, other questions will emerge.

After the defence of the dissertation, the executive session of the defence panel and the Dissertation Committee meet to vote on acceptance or rejection of the dissertation. The decision of the Dissertation Committee falls into one of the following four categories:

1. Acceptance of the Dissertation as presented.
2. Acceptance of the Dissertation subject to minor revisions to be done within three months.
3. Acceptance of Dissertation subject to major revisions to be done within five months.
4. Rejection of the Dissertation with guidelines for resubmission, which will be outlined based on the individual student needs

Note: Participation in the oral defence is to be undertaken in a fully professional manner by all parties concerned. Punctuality, careful consideration of the purpose of the examination, and adherence to prescribed procedures are required of all parties. The Chair of the oral defence may rule a line of questioning out of order if he or she feels that an examiner is straying from the central purpose of the defence.

Completing the Dissertation Process

a. Revisions

If the candidate's dissertation is accepted subject to minor or major revisions, he or she is responsible for making all revisions/corrections during 3-5 months period. The Chair of the student's Doctoral Committee supervises the revision process. As soon as the Chair is satisfied that the revisions have been satisfactorily completed, he or she submits the dissertation for approval to the Director of the PhD Programme.

b. Rejection:

Rejection of a dissertation terminates the student's doctoral candidacy. However, the PhD Committee may decide whether the student is permitted to write and submit another dissertation and what specific requirements would apply, including possible further coursework and comprehensive examinations.

c. Recommendation for the Doctoral Degree

After a successful defense, the Director of the PhD Programme recommends the candidate to the Dean of the Theological Seminary, who in turn presents the candidate to the Seminary faculty for conferral of the doctoral degree.

d. Final Submission of the Dissertation

At least four weeks prior to conferral of the doctoral degree, following oral defence of the dissertation the candidate must submit the following to the Dissertation Secretary and the Director of the PhD Programme for final review of conformity to University standards: the final form of the dissertation and abstract; a statement of approval signed by the Chair of the student's Doctoral Committee the student should inform the Dissertation Secretary of any revisions that have been suggested by the Defence Committee and made by the student, so that typographical and other errors may be avoided in the final dissertation form after the Dissertation Secretary and PhD Director have given the final approvals; the Dean of the Theological Seminary signs the approval page.

SEMINARY RESEARCH PROTOCOLS AND COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY RESEARCH PROTOCOL

Introduction

The following types and definitions of research works have been designated for Theological Seminary.

1. A Project for MA in Pastoral Theology (MAPTh), or MA in Missiology (MAMiss), Master of Chaplaincy (MChap), and Master of Divinity (MDiv) is an applied theology and ministerial research, following the established structure. The primary Adviser supervises a Project with the secondary Adviser.
2. An MABTS thesis is an academic, more theoretical, and thorough research, following specific methodologies required by various departments and presenting a more rigorous literature review. A thesis requires the supervision of two research committee members and is defended before a three-five-member defence panel and a public.
3. A dissertation is a highly academic, comprehensive, exhaustive research document, written in partial fulfilment of the degree of DMin or PhD in Biblical and Theological Studies. A DMin dissertation is written under the supervision of three committee members and defended before a three-five-member defence panel is public. A PhD dissertation is supervised by three research committee members and defended before a five-member defence panel and is public.
4. Therefore, the Theological Seminary adopts the following research protocol:

Research Protocol

Preliminary Stage

1. After an appropriate research course is taken and passed, a Primary Adviser is appointed by the Program Coordinator in consultation with the student, the Head of the Department, and the Dean.
2. The student, primary Adviser, and the Program Coordinator consult on the relevance of the student's topic, after which the Program Coordinator approves the topic if found relevant.
3. The topic and the Advisers (primary and secondary) who will form the project/thesis/dissertation committee are officially approved by the Theological Seminary Board.
4. The primary Adviser, in consultation with the Theological Seminary Research Assistant, assists the student with developing the proposal by following the guidelines of the Proposal and Research Design and AUA Standards for Written Work for the student's discipline and/or type of research.
5. The proposal must include the following: (1) Title page, (2) Tentative (yet comprehensive) Table of Contents, (3) Proposal (Statement of the Problem, (4) Purpose of the Study, (5)

- Methodology, (6) Delimitation, (7) Definition of Terms (if any). Other relevant documents (interview questions and/or questionnaires) must be attached.
6. The proposal committee composed of the Program Coordinator, Adviser, and the Theological Seminary Research Assistant approves the proposal.
 7. The proposal is submitted to the Research office through the Program Coordinator for review and clearance by the Institutional Review Board for Ethics.
 8. Where applicable in Master's Project/Thesis and doctoral Dissertation, a student may only defend the proposal when the method of data collection is clearly described in the proposal, and the instrument of data collection and ethics form is attached and presented to the Adviser, who subsequently serves the Program Coordinator with a copy of the proposal.
 9. As stated above, the Program Coordinator submits the proposal to the Research Director as the Chair of the Institutional Review Board for ethics review before final clearance is granted to schedule the proposal defence. The clearance shall be communicated to the student by a correspondence signed by the Institutional Review Board members. This could be in the form of a letter or the completion of an appropriate form. When the student is ready to defend the proposal where applicable, the Adviser informs the Program Coordinator, who then arranges the proposal defence.
 10. All committee members (the Program Coordinator and Advisers) are expected to attend the defence either in person or via Skype or teleconferencing. Alternatively, a Master's degree proposal may be reviewed by the project/thesis committee and appropriate recommendations made to the student.
 11. Where applicable, when a student defends a proposal successfully, the ethics approval form is signed by the Ethics Review Board. The student is free to collect data and continue the research process under the Adviser's supervision.

The Writing Stage Project (Writing and Completion)

12. When the proposal is approved, the project committee (primary Adviser and secondary adviser[s]), in consultation with the Theological Seminary Research Assistant (as applicable), continues the work with the student until completion. For a project, the committee consists of the primary Adviser and the secondary Adviser. For a Dissertation, a three-member committee is formed consisting of the primary Adviser and two secondary advisers. Each committee is constituted in consultation with the Program Coordinator and the Dean.
13. When the Adviser approves each chapter of the Project, it is sent to the secondary Adviser (s) for inputs. The observations made and further corrections recommended by the committee member(s) are communicated in writing to the student through the Adviser.
14. For MAPTh, MChap, MAMiss, and MDiv Projects, the final document is sent to the Program Coordinator as the final step in the process. The Program Coordinator then requests the Project grades from the Adviser and Secondary Adviser and signs the Copying and Binding Form.
15. The Project is submitted to the Research Office for editing, while the grade is processed through the Seminary.

16. After editing by the Research Office, the research document is copied and sent to the Dean for his final approval signature.
17. The Project is prepared for printing and binding, with one copy reserved for the University Library. Students may request additional bound copies for their personal use by using the Printing and Binding Form.
18. The signatures on the completed Project should be those of the: a. Adviser b. Secondary Adviser c. Programme Coordinator d. Dean

MABTS Thesis and Doctoral Dissertation

19. When the Adviser approves each chapter of the Thesis/Dissertation, it is sent to the committee member(s) for inputs. The observations made and further corrections recommended by the committee member(s) are communicated in writing to the student through the Adviser. Where necessary, the committee may hold consultations to agree on areas of differences. This ensures that the student is not unduly disadvantaged due to disagreements from the committee members' views.
20. When the Adviser and the committee member(s) approve the final document, it is then sent to an External Examiner recommended by the Program Coordinator in consultation with the Dean.

The Completion Stage

21. Upon receiving a satisfactory report from the External Examiner, and in consultation with them and the Program Coordinator, the Dean sets a date for the oral defence of the Thesis/Dissertation.
22. The Dean informs the Oral Defence Panel members: the External Examiner, Advisers, and Candidate in writing.
23. The Dean or his designee moderates the oral defence.
24. A defence shall not be scheduled if the student has not gone through the stated process unless there are extenuating circumstances indicated in writing by the concerned parties.
25. Thesis/Dissertation defences shall be open to the public. However, the audience shall not participate in the discussion and question during the oral defence.
26. A Thesis defence shall generally be no more than two hours and no less than one and a half hours long.
27. A Dissertation defence shall generally be no more than two and a half hours and no less than two hours long.
28. At the conclusion of the defence, and following the panel's Executive Session, the candidate is informed of the results of the defence, whether it is a pass or fail.
29. The Program Coordinator or his/her designee shall communicate the recommended corrections and time frame needed to complete them to the student and his Adviser in writing.
30. The candidate works on recommended revisions in consultation with the Adviser, who confirms that all the revisions are completed and turns in the final draft to the Program Coordinator or his/her designee for review and final approval.

31. The Program Coordinator sends the final document to the University Research Office for final editing. The editing process shall involve the Editor, Adviser and the student to ensure that the work's content is not unduly altered.
32. After editing, the document is copied and sent to the Seminary Office for signing.
33. The signatures on the completed Thesis/Dissertation should be those of the:
 - a. Primary Adviser
 - b. Secondary Advisor(s)
 - c. c. External Examiner (as applicable)
 - d. d. Program Coordinator
 - e. Dean
34. One bound copy of the final research document is required for the University Library. Students may request additional bound copies for their personal use by using the Printing and Binding Form.

Master of Divinity

Regulations for Project

The Master of Divinity Project is fully explained in the course outline for GSEM 694. However, the Master of Divinity Project is a research work with a theoretical framework and a practical application. Students are introduced to the Master of Divinity Project in GSEM 605 Documentary Research and Writing and select their topic and Adviser at that time. The student will work with the appointed advisers to approve the proposal until the paper is complete. The Project undergoes editorial check and approval before it gets official approval and bound.

The Project must be 60 to 80 pages in length, prepared with the appropriate referencing and listing of sources outlined in the "AUA Standards for Written Work." The Project may be written in two styles: (1) Program Development or (2) Case in ministry/ Missiological/ Theological Issue Program Development consists of the following chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Theological Foundation, 3) Review of Literature, 4) Description of Local Setting, 5) Programme Development, Implementation and Evaluation, and 6) Summary, Conclusion and Recommendations.

Case in ministry/ Missiological/ Theological Issue consists of the following chapters: (1) Introduction, (2) Theological Foundation, (3) Review of Literature, (4) Description of the Issue, (5) Analysis, Suggested Practical Solutions, and (6) Summary, Conclusion and Recommendations.

* MABTS students who want to write a Thesis may follow MABTS Thesis Design.

Regulations for Project

The Master of Arts in Missiology Project is fully explained in the course outline for MSSN 696. However, the Master of Arts in Missiology Project is research work that has a theoretical framework and a practical application. Students are introduced to the Master of Arts in Missiology Project in GSEM 605 Documentary Research and Writing and select their topic and Adviser at that time. The student will work with the appointed advisers to approve the proposal until the paper is complete. The Project demonstrates the student's mastery of necessary concepts in Islamic Ministry/African Traditional Religion ministry. The Project provides a philosophical framework and theoretical base for the chosen ministry topic based on a practical ministry area. Also provided is an adequate and supporting biblical and theological foundation. The Project may be designed to include appropriate research instruments in a given community as a foundation for programme development. Such a Project must utilize appropriate methodologies to support its conclusions and recommendations. Alternatively, a student may choose a topic or motif that needs further research and investigation. In that case, the issues that need clarification or the problems that need to be addressed must be identified. Such a topic must have a clear link to ministry in the area of the major. A Project supervisor and co-supervisor are assigned at the beginning of the course of studies. The students can consult their advisors regarding their Project and receive guidelines and help throughout the course. The Project is to be completed and submitted by the end of the study programme. The Project must be 60 to 80 pages in length, prepared with the appropriate referencing and listing of sources outlined in the AUA Standards for Written Work.

The Project may be written in two styles. The first is a programme development project that consists of six chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Biblical and Theological Foundation, 3) Literature Review, 4) Description of Local Setting (Field Research and Methodology), 5) Programme Implementation and Evaluation (the Addressing of the Problem with the development of the programme, its implementation and evaluation, and 6) Summary, Conclusion and Recommendations.

The second one is a case in ministry study with the following six chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Theological Foundation, 3) Description of Local Setting (Field Research and Methodology), 4) Case Study, 5) Analysis of Theme, and 6) Summary, Conclusions and Recommendations. The Project undergoes editorial check and approval before it gets official approval and bound.

Master of Arts in Pastoral Theology

Regulations for Project

The Master of Arts in Pastoral Theology Project is fully explained in the outline for GSEM 695. This Project is a research work with its theoretical framework and practical application to advance the students' research skills in a pastoral setting. Students are introduced to the writing of the Project in GSEM 605 Documentary Research and Writing. Students finally decide on their topics and advisers. Each student will work with the appointed advisers for the approval of the Project until the paper is complete. The Project undergoes editorial check and approval before it gets official approval and bound. The Project must be 60 to 80 pages in length, and it may be written in two styles. The first is a programme development project that consists of the following chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Biblical and Theological Foundation, 3) Description of Local Setting, 4) Programme Development, Implementation and Evaluation, and 5) Summary, Conclusion and Recommendations. The second one is a case in ministry study with the following chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Biblical and Theological Foundation, 3) Description of the Issue in Local Setting, 4) Analysis and Suggested Practical Solutions, and 5) Summary, Conclusions and Recommendations. The Project must be prepared with the appropriate referencing and listing of sources outlined in the AUA Standards for Written Work.

Master of Chaplaincy

Regulations for Project

The Master of Chaplaincy project is fully explained in the course outline for CHAP 696. This Project is a research work with its theoretical framework and practical application to advance the students' research skills in a chaplaincy setting. Students are introduced to the Master of Chaplaincy project in GSEM 605 Documentary Research and Writing. CHAP 694 Seminar in Chaplaincy Research strengthens the skills and methodologies needed for chaplaincy research. i.e. Field Research where quantitative and qualitative approaches are explored. Students finally decide on their topics and are supposed to produce a proposal for their project, as a final assignment, at the end of taking CHAP 694.

Each student will work with the appointed advisers for the approval of the Project until the paper is complete. A Secondary Adviser will be appointed after the approval of the primary Adviser. The Project undergoes editorial check and approval before it gets official approval for bounding.

The Project must be 60 to 80 pages in length, and it consists of the following chapters. The first type is a Program to address a problem: 1) Introduction, 2) Theological Foundation, 3) Review of Literature, 4) Field Research, 5) The Address of the Problem, and 6) Summary, Conclusion and Recommendations. The second one is an empirical study with the following six chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Theological Foundation, 3) Literature Review, 4) Field Research Methodology, 5) Presentation of and Analysis of Data and Discussion of Findings, and 6) Summary, Conclusions and Recommendations.

The Project must be prepared with the appropriate referencing and listing of sources outlined in the AUA Standards for Written Work.

Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies

The Master of Arts in Biblical and Theological Studies Thesis is research work with a theoretical framework, clear methodology and findings.

Regulations for Thesis

The Master of Arts in Biblical-Theological Studies The thesis demonstrates the student's ability to conduct academic research and present the findings in an acceptable academic written format. Students are introduced to the writing of the Thesis in GSEM 605 Documentary Research and Writing. The student should select a broad area of interest from which a thesis topic will be developed. The following steps should be taken as subsequent steps:

1. While doing coursework, the student may identify some aspects of courses related to their broad thesis area. Reading and research in these related areas will help the student discover the proposed thesis topic's viability.
2. Based on the student's proposed topic and the recommendation of the department of the major field of study, a three-member thesis committee is appointed by the program committee, and the programme coordinator informs the student of the decision—the chairperson of the thesis committee functions as the student's Adviser.
3. After preliminary approval has been given to the thesis topic and the thesis adviser and committee have been assigned, the student writes a formal thesis proposal with the thesis adviser's guidance, who works in consultation with the committee members. The student may orally present and defend the proposal to the thesis committee, chaired by any programme committee member. The thesis committee may accept, suggest modifications to, or reject the proposal.
4. Once the proposal has been accepted; the student works on the thesis under the thesis adviser and the committee's supervision. When the committee feels that the thesis is ready and the University editor has cleared it for defence, they will schedule a pre-defence assessment of the student's readiness to defend the thesis. If in the oral examination, the student demonstrates that he or she can publicly defend the work, the Adviser asks the programme coordinator to schedule the defence. At least two weeks before the defence, unbound copies of the thesis should be distributed to the committee members, the programme coordinator, and the Dean of the Theological Seminary. The time for the defence should be set according to the timeline provided by the Research office.
5. The thesis undergoes editorial check and approval before it gets official approval, defence and bounding.
6. The Seminary dean or his designee chairs the defence. The thesis committee's vote decides the acceptance or rejection of the thesis. Four final bound copies of the thesis, approved by the thesis committee, the University editor, and the Dean, should be turned in to the Dean's office no less than one week before graduation.

The final approval of the thesis is given by the Dean of the Theological Seminary, based on the defence team's recommendation, and recommendations are made from the Dean's office with the Thesis Completion Form to the Registrar's office.

The Thesis must be 60 to 85 pages in length, and it may be written in two styles depending on the student's area of emphasis. The first is exegetical research that consists of the following chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Review of Literature, 3) Passage in Its Context (Historical and Literary Analysis), 4) Exegesis, and 5) Summary and Conclusion. The second format can be used for researches on History, Archaeology, Systematic Theology, Biblical Theology, etc.

This research style can have the following chapters: 1) Introduction, 2) Review of Literature, 3) Analysis of the issue, and 4) Summary, Conclusion, and Implication.

The Thesis must be prepared with the appropriate referencing and listing of sources outlined in the AUA Standards for Written Work.

Doctor of Ministry

The Doctor of Ministry Dissertation integrates theological reflection, scholarly research to resolve a practical ministry challenge. In preparation for writing this Dissertation, students have to take two other requisite research courses, GSEM 754: DMin Dissertation Proposal Seminar and CHMN 704: Seminar in Applied Theology Methods. GSEM 795 DMin Dissertation demonstrates the student's ability to conduct academic research and present the findings in a written acceptable format approved by the University as contained in the AUA Standards for Written Work.

After completing the DMin Dissertation Proposal, Seminar students are expected to choose a topic for their Dissertation and an adviser. Working together with their advisers' students are to obtain approval for their proposals whenever they become ready. Students continue working with their primary and secondary advisers comprising the dissertation committee to aid in completing the Dissertation in readiness for defence.

Elements incorporated in the dissertation include a theoretical framework, a biblical and theological foundation, a comprehensive literature review of current sources on the subject, a field research component, and the development of an intervention to respond to an observed ministry challenge.

Methodologies appropriate to the chosen topic shall be applied to derive a fuller understanding of the research problem. Intervention shall be developed from the research findings incorporating elements from the biblical/theological foundations established, the extensive literature review, and the field research. The applied intervention shall eventually be implemented, evaluated, and reported. The entire Dissertation shall be between 120-150 pages. It shall have a bibliography listing in acceptable standard form for the Seminary all the academic sources cited within the work.

PhD in Biblical-Theological Studies

Description and Rationale of Dissertation Requirements

The culmination of the PhD programme is the dissertation that demonstrates the student's mastery and integration of theory and application gained during his/her studies. The research work takes the form of a theological-exegetical study, analytical or philosophical, conducted by the student relevant to the programme. The dissertation must constitute a definite contribution to knowledge. So, after the programme's residency phase and the student had passed his or her Comprehensive Examination, the school will verify if the student possesses the requisite skill, aptitude, and knowledge to pursue a PhD dissertation research work which constitutes 16 credits in the curriculum. This is done through a series of colloquiums organized by the University. The dissertation proposal represents the student's first attempt at thoughtfully explaining what he/she proposes to do as he/she undertakes the research work.

The proposal is written in consultation with the faculty adviser, which the programme's Dissertation Committee must approve. The dissertation must conform to University regulations and specifications concerning the format and method of preparation. This document can be found on the AUA website under the "Selected Regulations and Procedures for PhD Dissertation."

The entire Dissertation shall be between 200-250 pages. It shall have a bibliography listing in acceptable standard form for the Seminary of all the academic sources cited within the work.

MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH

CORE COURSES

PHHP 626: Health Promotion Theory and Practice

The course enables students to comprehend underlying concepts, principles, historical development, theory, and current practice of promoting health at the individual, group, community, nation, organization, and policy levels to reach a state of complete physical, mental, social, and spiritual well-being. The course fosters students' critical thinking around social determinants of health and approaches to health intervention. It aims to build students' understanding of key theoretical concepts and principles in health promotion, and of contemporary challenges in the practice of health promotion. A special attention is given to community health education assessment, the writing of goals and objectives, understanding of program types, application of the laws of learning, and of the behavioral component in the Health Promotion planning process.

PHGP 627: Program Planning, Evaluation, & Grant Writing

This course provides students with the concepts, knowledge, skills, and methodologies needed to undertake designing, implementing, monitoring, and evaluating programs in Public Health both domestically and internationally. The course is a continuation of health promotion theory and practice in that based on the need's assessment and problem identification, a budget and intervention plan are put in place. Specific activities, timeline for implementation, resource allocation, marketing, and strategies are reviewed. In addition, it covers data use, frameworks, program monitoring, indicators, information sources, evaluation designs, and implementation science. The focus of the course is on practical issues for undertaking program monitoring and evaluation of Public Health programs. The course will also focus on grant and proposal writing covering the research and prospect identification process, identifying potential grant sources, and developing the attitude and fortitude needed to write competitive grant proposals successfully. By writing and reviewing proposals, students gain competence in writing typical grant proposal components, including a statement of need/rationale, implementation strategies, outcomes, personnel, evaluation, budget, attachments, and an executive summary.

PHEH 636: Environmental Health & Disaster Management

This course is designed to provide students with an introduction to and overview of the key areas of environmental health and how they interact with agent and host factors to impact health and well-being. Using the perspectives of the population and community, the course covers factors associated with the development of environmental health problems. Students will gain an understanding of the interaction of individuals and communities with the environment, the potential impact on the health of environmental agents, and specific applications of concepts of environmental health. The course will cover principles derived from core environmental health disciplines including disease causation by chemical, physical and biological agents; agent sources/reservoirs; modes of transmission, and methods of control. Moreover, the course will review the types and public health consequences of natural and man-made disasters, principles of emergency planning, and management of disaster causalities. Control of disease outbreaks, physical and psychological needs of disaster victims, recovery, and coordination of emergency relief operations will be reviewed. In addition to academic concepts, the course topics will also be discussed from a field-practitioners point of view.

PHHM 647: Adventist Philosophy of Health

The contents of the course will include biblical concepts of healthy lifestyle, historical perspective of a healthy lifestyle, the role of Ellen G. White in defining the health message, discussion of balance and moderation as essential bases of health practices, physiology and patho-physiology, review of dominant lifestyle diseases, principles of sanitation, hygiene, and disease transmission, and exploration of lifestyle intervention programs.

PHHP 691: Internship

This course provides practical work experience to students and allowing them to meet and learn from professionals in the field. Students are required to enroll and complete a field practicum with a Governmental and Non-Governmental Health Service Agent, Ministry of Health, etc. during the course of their study. Students must obtain on-the-job experience working under supervision in a relevant capacity on a full-time basis. All work hours must be completed on one job site. A minimum of 60 clock hours of work experience is required. The performance of the student at the workplace must be evaluated by the supervisor on a prescribed form, which is then sent to the Program Director.

PHRM 611: Biostatistics

The course will deal with data collection, organization, analysis, interpretation, and presentation of numerical data for health sciences. The course will also provide students with an understanding of statistical reasoning in public health research in order to develop their ability to read and critically evaluate the statistical section of journal articles. Additionally, the course introduces students to the application of various statistical concepts and procedures and their associated technical and computing aspects to enable them to analyze a set of data. The topics discussed throughout this course are presented in an order which allows the development, analysis, and interpretation of statistical knowledge in a stepwise fashion, which progresses from the basics to the more complex.

PHRM 612: Research Methods in Public Health

This course introduces the fundamentals of research study. The course explores research design, collection and reporting of data, interpretation of findings, inferential procedures, and current public health research. It expands students' knowledge in both qualitative, quantitative research and mixed methods and techniques that introduce them to postgraduate research methods, challenges, and organization, including creative practice. Students will also be introduced to a range of research tools and will be equipped to plan and organize their research and their mode of enquiry, as well as to communicate their findings. Ethical issues in conducting research will be introduced.

PHEM 645: Epidemiological Methods

The purpose of this course is to present epidemiological methods and inferences to Public Health professionals with little prior experience and produce graduates with an understanding on epidemiological concepts and the ability to critically interpret reports from epidemiological studies. This course enables the learner to comprehend the general principles involved in understanding the frequency, distribution, and etiology of acute and chronic diseases, and the methods for disease surveillance and control. The student learns the epidemiological principles, and procedures for surveillance, and their application in the occurrence of health-related events in the population. An introductory overview of biostatistics concepts and skills that are necessary for epidemiological practice are addressed. The learner will be empowered to work through epidemiological studies to identify, describe and measure the distribution of health and disease, and their determinants, in a specific population. By collecting data and analyzing disease incidence and prevalence, effective interventions and preventions can be realized. An emphasis is put on the epidemiology of lifestyle-related diseases.

PHRM 695: Research Thesis/Project

For the culminating phase of the coursework, each student is required to write either a thesis or a project. The thesis course requires conceptualizing and carrying on a complete empirical study. It requires a proposal defense before data collection and a final defense to present the findings of the study. The project course is more practical in nature. It does not require a systematic empirical study.

Specialization Courses

HEALTH PROMOTION SPECIALIZATION

PHNU 620: Public Health Nutrition

Public Health Nutrition trains individuals on basic nutrition concepts and requirements in the preservation of health. The course gives attention to food sources, utilization, and functions of nutrients in the human body and the study of nutritional issues and problems in population groups, including a survey of the various methods for dealing with such problems.

PHHP 630: Strategies of Health Promotion

The course exposes students to inter-relatedness of the underlying determinants of health and hence the need for integrated responses based on the individual, interpersonal, organizational, community and public policy dimensions. Emphasis will be placed on health education, health promotion and clinical preventive services. Strategies for counseling and education, health education theories and practices, and development of learner-centered instructional strategies will be explored.

PHHP 652: Substance Abuse & Mental Health

Using an interdisciplinary approach to study mental health, mental illness, and substance use, students will examine a variety of perspectives and contextual factors used to explore issues and concepts of mental health. Distribution patterns, risk factors, organization of health systems, and societal efforts toward prevention and treatment of substance abuse will be reviewed. A focus will be placed on understanding the social determinants of substance abuse, effect of substance on mental health and explore issues from a population and public health perspective.

PHHP 654: Disease Prevention, Control, and Healthy lifestyle

This course is designed to provide practical knowledge of disease prevention in population health. The course will identify risk factors that contribute to the most common lifestyle diseases (cardiovascular disease, cancer, stroke, diabetes, chronic lung diseases, osteoporosis, anxiety and depression), and common infectious diseases (influenza, malaria, diarrheal disease and STI). The dimensions of wellness and their contribution to overall health and wellbeing will be reviewed. Health promotion and disease prevention measures will be discussed with focus on nutrition, physical activity, emotional wellness, stress management, injuries, violence, personal choices and behaviour.

PHET 662: Ethics in Public Health

Social legitimacy and public trust are essential to effective public health. This course focuses on ethical theory and current ethical issues in public health and health policy, including resource allocation, the use of summary measures of health, the right to health care, and conflicts between autonomy and health promotion efforts. Ideals of human rights, individual liberty, social justice and equality, community, solidarity, power structure, coercion, discrimination, stigma and the common good, which are central to public health policy and practice, will be explored.

PHHP 668: Global Health Issues

Global Health Issues is pertinent area of public health that pertains health problems, and concerns that transcend national boundaries, and which may be influenced by circumstances or experiences in other countries, and are best addressed by cooperative actions and solutions. This course presents an overview of the world's vast diversity of determinants of health and disease. Learners will be introduced to the complex tapestry of social, economic, political, and environmental factors that affect the health of populations globally. As a learner you will have an opportunity to critically appraise health systems in different parts of the world. You will learn about the current and emerging global health priorities, including emerging infectious diseases such as Corona and Ebola, poverty, conflicts and emergencies, health inequity, principles and impact of health systems reforms, and major global initiatives for disease prevention and health promotion.

NUTRITION SPECIALIZATION

PHNU 620: Public Health Nutrition

Public Health Nutrition trains individuals on basic nutrition concepts and requirements in the preservation of health. The course gives attention to food sources, utilization, and functions of nutrients in the human body and the study of nutritional issues and problems in population groups, including a survey of the various methods for dealing with such problems.

PHNU 621: Nutritional Needs I: Carbohydrates & Lipids

This course explores the role of energy-containing macronutrients and fiber in human nutrition and their importance to overall health and wellbeing. Structural properties, digestion, absorption, function, metabolism, and control of metabolism of carbohydrates and lipids are emphasized. The student will understand the process of fuel utilization in response to food intake and the role it plays in energy balance to integrate proper metabolism. In addition, the students will be empowered to translate knowledge into practice where they develop programs that have positive public health impact where macronutrients are applied to chronic diseases that are nutrient related to foster optimum health and wellness. Research on the impact and relationship between the macronutrients utilization and disease will be discussed. Students taking this course should have at least three units of Biochemistry or Nutritional Metabolism or its equivalent.

PHNU 622: Nutritional Needs II: Proteins and Micronutrients

This course examines the micronutrients and integrated metabolism. It emphasizes on the requirements of vitamins and minerals as nutrients necessary for normal human physiology functions. The learner will understand the process of metabolism, function of proteins, vitamins, and minerals and role they play in the relationship between nutrition and health and disease. This knowledge empowers the learner to develop effective nutritional protocols that may help people practice healthful living. In addition, metabolism; homeostatic maintenance; health concerns for each discussed nutrient; population studies in nutrition (mortality statistics, life expectancy; diet-disease relationship; role of nutrition therapy) will be reviewed. Students taking this course should have at least three units of Biochemistry or Nutritional Metabolism or its equivalent.

PHET 662: Ethics in Public Health

Social legitimacy and public trust are essential to effective public health. This course focuses on ethical theory and current ethical issues in public health and health policy, including resource allocation, the use of summary measures of health, the right to health care, and conflicts between autonomy and health promotion efforts. Ideals of human rights, individual liberty, social justice and equality, community, solidarity, power structure, coercion, discrimination, stigma and the common good, which are central to public health policy and practice, will be explored.

PHNU 668: Global Nutritional Health Issues

Global Nutritional Health Issues is pertinent area of public health nutrition that pertains nutrition problems, and concerns that transcend national boundaries, and which may be influenced by circumstances or experiences in other countries, and are best addressed by cooperative actions and solutions. This course presents an overview of the world's vast diversity of determinants of nutritional health and disease. Learners will be introduced to the complex tapestry of social, economic, political, and nutritional factors that affect the health of populations globally. As a learner you will have an opportunity to critically appraise health systems in different parts of the world. You will learn about the current and emerging global nutritional health priorities, including emerging nutritional condition such as undernutrition, overnutrition, malnutrition, poverty, childhood nutritional problems, health inequity, principles and impact of health systems reforms, and major global initiatives for disease prevention and health promotion.

PHNU 693: Maternal and Child Health

The purpose of the course is to address a number of public health challenges that have a significant impact on the health of women and children, who often are the most vulnerable when resources are limited in communities and nations. The course applies comparative methods of inquiry to understand these issues as they occur and are managed in countries across the income and development spectrum. This course exposes the student to the linkages between socioeconomic conditions and the poor indicators relating to child-maternal health.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH SPECIALIZATIONPHEH 638: Sanitation and Waste Management

The course focuses on best practices for the public for handling sanitation and waste management in communities. The course will look at the nature of toxic and hazardous wastes and methods for their disposal to protect health and the environment and to prevent contamination of groundwater. The environmental health and safety aspects of solid waste collection, treatment and disposal, and regulations governing waste management are also discussed.

PHEH 644: Occupational Health and Safety

The purpose of the course is to promote occupational health and safe environment, identifying and analyzing risk factors and ill-health at the workplace. The program also provides students with knowledge, skills and solid training in the theories and practices of occupational health and safety, emergency planning and environmental management. Graduates will have the foundations to create, plan, implement, audit, and evaluate programs in the areas of occupational health and safety, emergency planning and environmental management systems.

PHEH 662: Ethics in Public Health

ACSP 621 Business Management

3 Credits

This course is designed to introduce students to the role of business in society and the internal operations of an organization. It includes an overview of what business organization is all about, how they function, and how they interact with the environment. Developing this foundation will be helpful to gain a solid framework of business knowledge and vocabularies. The course will focus on the financing, managing, organizing, and marketing functions of an organization, forms of business organizations, entrepreneurship, small business and franchise systems, etc. The course demonstrates how the core business areas are interrelated with one another.

ACSP 608 Seminars in Trends in Computing and Technology

3 Credits

This course seeks to expose the students to the current trends in computing and technology, considering the practices in industry as well as the research aspect. The main goal of the course is to first help the student to choose an area for their future profession and research work, and second to enable the students to keep abreast with the ongoing trends in research and technological advancement in Computer Science. The topics covered will vary depending on current reliable survey on the trends. Then 10 top trends in computing and technology will be selected.

ACSP 609 Advanced Database Systems and Database Security

3 Credits

The main objectives of this course are: to develop the student knowledge and understanding of the underlying principles of Relational Database Management System, build up his capacity to learn DBMS advanced features, develop his competence in enhancing database systems using distributed databases, build up his capacity to implement and maintain an efficient database system using emerging trends, develop his competence in database security and database systems administration. Topics covered include Advanced SQL and query optimization, Database Transactions Management, Distributed Databases, Database Security Management, Data warehouse and data marts, NoSQL Databases.

RESEARCH COURSES

ACSP 610 Research and Publication in Computer Science

3 Credits

The overall objective of the course is to prepare student to conduct a research work, publish and present his/her results. It provides students with knowledge and skills needed to conduct a research work and make publications in the arena of computer science and related domains. It enables students to have a clear grasp on what exactly is good research and how to achieve it. The course also explores the role of research methods in computer science and teaches some writing tools peculiar to computing publications.

ACSP 671 Research in Cybersecurity

3 Credits

This course addresses the current issues of research in Cybersecurity including challenges, research gaps. It also introduces the students to the ecosystem of research in cybersecurity. Finally, the course is designed to help the student select his/her thesis/project topic, plan and carry out the research and make a publication in refereed cybersecurity journal before his/her proposal defence.

ACSP 672 Research in Computing Technologies and AI

3 Credits

This course addresses the current issues of research in computing technologies (e.g Cloud, Blockchain, etc.) and Artificial Intelligence including challenges and research gaps. It also introduces the students to the ecosystem of research in those fields. Finally, the course is designed to help the student select his/her thesis/project topic, plan and carry out the research and make a publication in refereed relevant journal before his/her proposal defence.

ACSP 673 Research in Networking and Systems Administration

3 Credits

This course addresses the current issues of research in Networking and systems including challenges and research gaps. It also introduces the students to the ecosystem of research in those fields. Finally, the course is designed to help the student select his/her thesis/project topic, plan and carry out the research and make a publication in refereed relevant journal before his/her proposal defence.

ACSP 680 Thesis / Project

6 Credits

This course aims at introducing the student to a written elaboration of original research that makes creative contributions to the students chosen area of specialization. It involves the preparation of a research proposal, including a review of the literature, under the guidance of a thesis adviser, and its subsequent implementation.

Cybersecurity Specialization

ACSP 631 IT Security

3 Credits

This course aims at providing the student with knowledge needed to understand, and have a broad overview of cyber security, the principles of data and technology that frame and define cyber security. It first presents the importance, evolution, and the current state of cyber security. Then it continues with management, policies, laws and regulations on cyber security. Finally, it addresses the what and why of IT security, the types of IT security. For each type, the common attacks are introduced as well as existing mitigation solutions.

ACSP 632 Applied Cryptography3 Credits

This course introduces the design principles of the most common cryptographic tools and algorithms. The understanding of the design principles helps also in identifying the strengths and weaknesses of those tools and algorithms, and therefore inform on how to apply them to ensure computing systems security. The course is not only limited to the use of the tools but it also develops the capacity of the students in implementing these tools and algorithms.

ACSP 618 Security Risk Management and Policy3Credits

This course is about how to manage security risk and develop security policies. Its aim is to provide to student the knowledge and skills needed to identify, evaluate, and manage security risks within an organization, as well as to develop good information security policy for the organization. Topics in this course include Risk management, risk assessment analysis techniques, information security policy.

ACSP 633 Offensive Security3 Credits

This course aims at providing the students with hacking skills and develop their competencies in penetrating testing. It enables the student to understand the mindset of hackers, their methods/techniques, and tools. The course is a lab-oriented course which focusses on skills for attacking networks; bypassing network access controls, attacking software and computing platforms. The rationale is that in-depth hacking skills are extremely useful to develop robust and secured systems. The topics covered include penetration testing, wireless attacks, evasion techniques and breaching defences.

ACSP 651 Malware Analysis3 Credits

This course aims at providing a deep understanding of malware analysis and how it can be implemented. It covers the concepts, techniques, and tools so that on completion of the course, students will have the knowledge and skills required to analyse and detect malicious software, investigate, and defend against malware. Topics covered include Static analysis, dynamic analysis, debugging malicious code, code injection and hooking, obfuscation techniques, memory forensics.

ACSP 652 Cyber Ops and Cyber Forensics3 Credits

This course prepares the student to the job of a security analyst. It equips the student with the knowledge, skills, and competencies required for the job by the covering the current relevant methods, techniques, and tools used in defensive security. The topics include the role of security analyst, the threat landscape, evolution of cyber threats, common attacks methods, security analyst challenges and skills, security investigation process, security analyst tools.

E-Services SpecializationACSP 628 Artificial Intelligence*3 Credits

This course first provides an overview of artificial intelligence and its applications. Then it goes onto general AI algorithms, methods and techniques, Machine Learning (ML), Natural Language Processing (NLP) and Computer Vision. The course gives basic introduction of the theory (the concepts, methods, and mathematics) and focuses more on the application of AI to solve business and organisational problems. The topics covered include definition and history of artificial intelligence, branches of artificial intelligence, applications of artificial intelligence, combinatorial problem-solving techniques, constraint satisfaction and optimization problems, artificial intelligence for games, machine learning, natural language processing and computer vision.

ACSP 640 Cloud Computing

3 Credits

This course aims at providing the student with knowledge and skills needed to design, implement, and deploy cloud services within a given computing environment. The course will also enable the student to understand and evaluate scientific/research paper on cloud computing. It investigates cloud computing models, techniques, and architectures. Students will be exposed to the current practices in cloud computing.

ACSP 636 Mobile Computing

3 Credits

The goal of this course is to equip the student with knowledge and skills needed to design and implement innovative mobile applications used to solve real life problems. Students will learn: the fundamentals and acquire hands-on experience with mobile computing as well as sensor-based systems, to design and develop mobility-aware systems, to build and program sensor-based systems and finally they will learn how to develop applications that use existing web services.

ACSP 648 Web Based Applications and Services

3 Credits

This course aims at providing the student knowledge and skills needed to design, implement, and deploy Web based applications and Web services. It focuses on advanced design, infrastructures/architecture, and security issues. The topics discussed include Web application design, web application technologies, tools, languages, and standards, service-oriented architecture, Web service description language and SOAP, REST architecture and RESTFull web services.

ACSP 662 Managing Big Data

3 Credits

The course explores key data analysis and management techniques, which applied to massive datasets and enable real-time decision making, business intelligence, and scientific discovery at large scale. It examines the map-reduce parallel computing paradigm and the associated technologies such as distributed file systems, No-SQL databases, and stream computing engines. Additionally, machine learning methods are covered to enable efficient analysis of large volumes of data in real time. The overall aim of this course is triple: (1) Make the student familiar with the fundamental concepts of Big Data Management and analytics. (2) Make the student competent in recognizing challenges faced by applications dealing with exceptionally large volumes of data as well as in proposing scalable solutions for them. (3) Enable the student to understand how Big Data impacts business intelligence, scientific discovery, and our day-to-day life.

ACSP 663 Internet of Things3 Credits

The goal of this course is to equip the student with knowledge and skills needed to design and implement innovative IoT solutions used to solve real life problems. Students will learn: the fundamentals and acquire hands-on experience with IoT development platforms. A focus is put on sensor-based systems, and the processing and communication of data to monitor and control systems and processes.

Network and Systems Administration SpecializationACSP 617 Systems Administration*3 Credits

This course trains the students to setup and maintain reliable computer systems in a multi-user environment. Emphasis is put on servers, services, applications, devices, users, and disaster recovery. It also introduces cloud technology. Topics in this course include Windows Server Management (Active Directory, DNS, Group Policy, tools for windows administration), Linux Server Administration, automation, cloud technology, database security and administration, virtualisation.

ACSP 619 Network Administration3 Credits

This course trains the students to setup and maintain reliable computer networks in a multi-user environment. The course covers all the knowledge and skills required to design, plan, and implement a secured and efficient computer network. It first gives a review of the OSI model and network protocols. Then continues with switching and routing. Finally, it ends with network security and performance. Topics in this course include OSI model, network services and protocols, switching and routing, firewalls, VPNs, network access control and traffic and performance monitoring, Network Operation Center (NOC), Software Defined Network (SDN).

ACSP 640 Cloud Computing3 Credits

This course aims at providing the student with knowledge and skills needed to design, implement, and deploy cloud services within a given computing environment. The course will also enable the student to understand and evaluate scientific/research paper on cloud computing. It investigates cloud computing models, techniques, and architectures. Students will be exposed to the current practices in cloud computing.

ACSP 631 IT Security3 Credits

This course aims at providing the student with knowledge needed to understand, and have a broad overview of cyber security, the principles of data and technology that frame and define cyber security. It first presents the importance, evolution, and the current state of cyber security. Then it continues with management, policies, laws and regulations on cyber security. Finally, it addresses the what and why of IT security, the types of IT security. For each type, the common attacks are introduced as well as existing mitigation solutions.

ACSP 618 Security Risk and Management Policy3 Credits

This course is about how to manage security risk and develop security policies. Its aim is to provide to student the knowledge and skills needed to identify, evaluate, and manage security risks within an organization, as well as to develop good information security policy for the organization. Topics in this course include Risk management, risk assessment analysis techniques, information security policy.

ACSP 668 Emerging Computing and Network Technologies

3 Credits

The goal of this course is to provide a bridge to research. It focuses on studies of recent publications in the areas of computer technologies as well as network technologies. This objective is two-fold: 1) The course introduces to students the current state of technologies. 2) the course introduces students to research in areas of computer and network technologies.

CORE COURSES

MKTG 610 Marketing Management

This course addresses the management challenge of designing and implementing the best combination of marketing variables to carry out an organization's strategy in its target markets. Specifically, this course seeks to develop the student's skills in applying the analytical perspectives, decision tools, and concepts of marketing to such decisions as product offering (including the breadth of product line, features, quality level, and customer service), communications programs (with an emphasis on advertising, sales promotion, and the sales force), distribution channels (the role of distributors, retailers, and other intermediaries), and pricing to capture the value created for the customer. Students will design a marketing plan as an outcome of the class.

ACCT 615 Accounting for Decision Making

The course is designed to equip students on the use of financial statements and other accounting information in managing an organization. The focus is on the internal preparation, the analysis and interpretation of financial data for decision-making purposes. The course includes topics such as cost concepts and cost behaviour, costing systems, budgeting, performance analysis, management planning and control techniques, activity-based management, relevant costs in decision-making.

MGNT 620 Human Resource Management

The purpose of this course is to enhance student understanding of the management of human resources and to enable them to develop skills and ability to apply those concepts and principles from a strategic standpoint. Among the basic issues that will be explored are the following: issues associated with employee recruitment, employee motivation and job satisfaction, the design of jobs, employee development and empowerment, evaluation of employee's performance, group behavior and teamwork. These are among the issues that will be explored.

INFS 625 IT and Management Information Systems

The main purpose of this course is to provide the student with an overall understanding of the main concepts of management information systems and to underscore the significance of such systems in modern organizations. This course is about establishing, operating, controlling, and integrating computer-based information systems to support management decision-making. Topics discussed include Information Technology Infrastructure, Information Systems in global business, information security and control, creating competitive advantages through the use of Information Systems, Business Intelligence, online collaboration tools, e-business, mobile technology.

ECON 610 Managerial Economics

This course teaches future managers how to use economic theory, microeconomic tools and analytical tools in managerial economics, such as optimization techniques in decision making and in solving real-world problems, in the context of organizational settings such as a firm or a government agency. Key concepts that are explored include constraint optimization problems demand estimation and analysis and forecasting using regression analysis, production and cost analysis, pricing and output decision.

BUAD 630 Business Ethics in Biblical Perspective

This course examines ethical issues and dilemmas facing contemporary leaders, employees, and institutions in today's society. Topics include the role of ethics in organizations, theories and principles of ethics, corporate social responsibility and stakeholder management, ethical leadership, ethical issues in business and not-for-profit organizations, and other emerging ethical issues. An ethical decision-making framework is explored, using biblical principles as a basis.

MGNT 625 Strategic Management

This course deals with the process of strategic management. It is concerned with a stream of decisions and actions, which leads to the development of an effective strategy to help achieve corporate objectives.

It helps build in students critical business skills of planning and managing strategic activities. Topics include determining mission, purpose, and philosophy of companies, developing a company profile, conducting a resource analysis, assessing the external environment, identifying various strategic options, making strategic analysis and choice, setting long term objectives, developing long-term annual objectives and grand strategies, implementing strategic decisions, reviewing, and finally controlling them.

RESEARCH COURSES:

BUAD 680 Quantitative analysis for business decision-making

The purpose of this course is to equip students on how to identify the relevant data and use them to analyse trends, patterns, relationships and uncover significant information for organizational decision-making. The areas covered include: the role of quantitative analysis in business decision-making, models in quantitative decision-making, fractions and proportions, logarithms, equations and mathematical models, graphs, charts frequency distributions, time-series graphs, principles of graphical presentations, measures of average, measures of variabilities, probability and probability distribution, decision-making under uncertainty, population and sampling, central limit theorem, confidence intervals, hypothesis tests, p-values in hypothesis testing, X^2 test, techniques in quality management, statistical process control, control charts, Pareto charts, Six sigma, moving averages and time series, regression, correlation, using the regression equation, non-linear regression, multiple regression, linear programming, stock control, emerging development in quantitative analysis in decision making.

BURM 680 Business Research

The purpose of this course is to equip students with quantitative and qualitative research capabilities. It combines both the theoretical and practical approaches of designing and executing a well-rounded research by providing a framework to solve research problems, interpret research, and understand the interaction among the various parts of the research process. The course is structured in such a way that students will learn how to develop a research proposal and how to design, conduct, and evaluate research studies.

BURM 690 Thesis/Project

For the culminating phase of the coursework, each student is required to write either a thesis or a project. The thesis course requires conceptualizing and carrying on a complete empirical study. It requires a proposal defense before data collection and a final defence to present the study's findings. The project course is more practical in nature than the thesis option. It requires a practical outcome such as a model or tool that can be of use in the organization, based on the findings of the paper. The project does not need to be defended.

MANAGEMENT SPECIALIZATIONMGNT 630 Corporate Governance

This course will examine the principles of good governance and its impact on modern corporations.

It discusses the role of the board of directors and analyses the issue of the shareholder supremacy. It also analyses the roles of the managers. Among the several issues covered: the history and role of corporations in society; the contemporary typologies of governance; the different types of corporations that exist around the globe; the principles of governance; the duties and obligations of the three major categories of stakeholders (shareholders, management and the board of directors); the compensation and performance of managers; the relationship between corporate social responsibility and corporate governance.

MGNT 640 Change and Crisis Management

This course analyses the forces that drive organizations to change, examines impediments to change, and surveys a range of approaches for making organizational change more effective. Students will develop an understanding of the various change processes and develop practical skills for managing and leading change. Special attention will be given to managing disruptions from transitions and the inevitable losses that radical change brings. It also describes the thinking and planning that are essential to managing and communicating during an organizational crisis. The students will develop a crisis management plan at the end of the course.

MGNT 650 Teamwork and Leadership

Increasingly unpredictable environments now require teamwork and leadership skills earlier in one's career than ever before. This course focuses on individual teamwork and leadership skills assessment and development, team building and performance, and team leadership. Key topic areas include self-awareness, working in teams, and leading others.

MGNT 680 Project Management

This course develops the competencies and skills for planning and controlling projects in profit and non-profit organizations. It examines the project management life cycle, defining project parameters, matrix management challenges, effective project management tools and techniques, and the role of a project manager.

FINANCE SPECIALISATION

FINC 630 Corporate Finance

This course aims to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of Corporate Finance. The course covers: overview of corporate finance (introduction to corporate finance, financial statements, taxes and cash flow); financial statements and long-term financial planning (working with financial statements, long-term financial planning and growth); valuation of future cash flows (introduction to valuation: the time value of money, discounted cash flow valuation, interest rates and bond valuation, stock valuation); capital budgeting (net present value and other investment criteria, making capital investment decisions, project analysis and evaluation); risk and return (some lessons from capital market history, return, risk, and the security market line); cost of capital and long-term financial policy (cost of capital, raising capital, financial leverage and capital structure policy, dividends and dividend); short term financial planning and management (short-term finance and planning, cash and liquidity management, credit and inventory management); topics in corporate finance.

FINC 640 Investment & Portfolio Management

This course covers the role and scope of investment (meaning of investments, the structure investment process, investment vehicles and steps in investing); the securities of the market (introduction, nature and functions of the stock exchange, stock exchange- membership regulatory framework, and over-the counter market); new issue market (functions of primary and secondary market, listing of securities and rights issue); valuation of securities (bond valuation, preference share valuation, and ordinary share valuation); investment return and risk (rate of return, systematic and unsystematic risk and calculation of expected return and risk); portfolio analysis and management (overview of portfolio management process and portfolio policies and construction); special classes of securities (public securities, industrial, banks and insurance); financial ratio analysis (profitability ratios, liquidity ratios, and investment ratios); and capital investment appraisal (payback period, net present value method, and internal rate of return).

FINC 660 Insurance & Risk Management

This course describes the concepts and techniques available to corporations, non-profit organizations, and other organizations in their efforts to manage pure risks. The costs associated with such pure risks as product liability, environmental impairments, property losses, work-related injuries, and employee benefits (e.g., pensions, health insurance, etc.) affect the daily management of all organizations. Managers who make decisions without appropriate consideration of risk management issues can jeopardize the long-term survival of their organizations. The course examines a common set of techniques which can be used by managers in dealing with these problems, including risk assumption, prevention, diversification, and transfer via insurance and non-insurance market mechanisms. In turn, students learn to recognize that the institutional structure of the organization itself influence its own risks and their corresponding treatments.

FINC 690 International Financial Management

The course will explore the international economic environment, including analyses of exchange rates, international monetary systems, contemporary currency regimes, and current or recent financial crises. It also will examine firms' exposure to various types of exchange risk and those methods and financial instruments used to manage that risk.

ACCOUNTING SPECIALIZATION

ACCT 621 Financial Accounting

The objective of this course is to familiarize the student with the basic concepts, standards and practices of financial accounting. The course is devoted to the basic financial statements, the analysis and recording of transactions, and the underlying concepts and procedures, with an eye toward financial statement analysis.

The course deals with the procedures necessary to prepare and understand the balance sheet, income statement and statement of cash flows. The course also examines the accounting for the most common and significant transactions of a firm, such as inventories, long-term fixed assets, bonds and other long term debt, income taxes, and stockholder's equity.

ACCT 640 Auditing & Control

This course includes a consideration of the role of the auditor, the organization of the accounting profession, and the current audit environment. It introduces the student to generally accepted auditing standards (GCAS), professional ethics, and legal liability. It exposes the students to a working knowledge of the auditing procedure and techniques, the statistical audit tools as well as how to prepare audit reports. The course also covers the auditor's reporting standards and uses case studies and professional journal articles as bases for discussion and analysis.

ACCT 650 Advanced Financial Accounting

The purpose of this course is to extend the concepts introduced in Financial Accounting and covers advanced financial reporting issues and accounting methods and in-depth study of partnerships and fiduciary accounting. Students will learn how to prepare, read, analyse and evaluate the consolidated financial statements.

ACCT 660 International Accounting and Financial Reporting

Generally accepted accounting principles and reporting practices vary significantly throughout the world. The objectives of this course include: (1) broadening the student's knowledge of how those principles and practices vary and how they are developed in the various countries; (2) analyzing how those differences impact upon financial statements and business decisions; and (3) gaining an understanding of certain especially important international financial reporting matters, such as (a) foreign currency translation and transaction concerns, (b) accounting for transactions designed to hedge exposure resulting from changes in currency values, and (c) inflation accounting.

INFORMATION SYSTEMS SPECIALISATION

INFS 609 Advanced Database Management and Administration

The main objectives of this course are to develop the students' knowledge and understanding of the underlying principles of Relational Database Management System, build capacity to learn DBMS advanced features, develop their competence in enhancing database systems using distributed databases, build capacity to implement and maintain an efficient database system using emerging trends, develop their competence in database security and database systems administration. Topics covered include database development process; database design (logical data design and relational model, physical database design and performance); advanced SQL, the client/server database and internet database environments, data warehouse and database administration.

INFS 630 Advanced IT Service Systems Analysis and Design

The purpose of this course is to provide an understanding and application of system analysis and design processes. Students evaluate and choose appropriate system development methodologies and design a system. Topics covered include Introduction to systems analysis and design; project initiation and management, and requirements determination; analysis modelling: functional modelling, structural modelling, and behavioral modelling; design modelling; class and method design, data management, layer design, human computer interaction layer design, physical architecture layer design; construction, installation, and operations of IT services systems.

INFS 660 Network Design & System Administration

The purpose of the course is to provide students with practical network design & system administration skills to be able to manage an organizational network effectively. Topics covered include network design (logical and physical designs), networking switching and routing, systems administration tools, Windows servers administration, Linux Administration.

INFS 680 E -Commerce

The purpose of the course is to introduce contemporary management philosophies as they have come to be used for the marketing, selling, and distribution of goods and services through the Internet, World-Wide-Web, and other electronic media. The course will cover E-business and E-commerce; E-business models and concepts; Strategies in E-Commerce; E-business Frameworks; Security in E-Commerce, Designing and Implementing Web sites for E-Commerce; Payment Systems; and existing E-Commerce Solutions.

HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATION SPECIALIZATION

HADM 619 Services Marketing and Management in Healthcare

This course is an in-depth study of the implications involved in marketing and managing organizations that operate within the service industry, with emphasis in the healthcare sector. Its purpose is to demonstrate the distinctive approach to managing and marketing strategies both in its development and in its executions and help students develop the skills needed to effectively manage and design marketing strategies for these organizations. The course will cover the following topics: the distinctive characteristics of service marketing, the concept of service management, the analysis of the environment of the customer-patients and the competitive environment of the healthcare sector, the alignment of the organization's resources with the market demand, the major elements of services marketing mix, service quality and patient satisfaction issues, customer relationship management, role of internal marketing related to service delivery, measurement of the effectiveness of service management and marketing strategies, challenges of marketing in the healthcare sector.

FINC 648 Financial Management in Healthcare

This course is to study the major decision-making areas of financial management and topics in financial theory, with an emphasis in the healthcare sector. The course reviews the theories related to the investment, financing policies, dividend, capital budgeting, valuation and the link between valuation and corporate financial decisions. It further helps students master the techniques and tools used in the financial management field for decision-making purposes.

HADM 655 Health Ethics and Legislation

This course is an in-depth study of the state laws and regulatory mandates related as well as the ethical considerations that must be faced in hospital administration. It uses a constructive problem-centered approach to engage students in understanding the legal issues implicated in healthcare delivery. The students learn about the laws, regulations, accreditation, risk management, and insurance issues related to healthcare facilities, legal and ethical considerations regarding patient care, handling of patient information, medical malpractice, legal ramifications of public relations and healthcare decision-making, antitrust issues, and other emerging trends in legislation.

HADM 690 Quality Management Systems for Hospitals

The course is the study of the techniques and tools needed to set up an effective quality management systems in the hospital setting. It aims at helping students to gain practical knowledge of how to implement, manage and evaluate the organization's quality management systems. The topics to be covered are: concepts of quality management and improvement; quality management systems planning; systems implementation; interface of technology and human resource in total quality management; tools and techniques used for total quality management; requirements of ISO standards 9001:2015; challenges in implementing quality management systems.

CORE COURSES

LEAD 704: Ethics and Integrity in Leadership

3 Credits

The purpose of this course is to enlighten the students on the principles and practices which underlie selected biblical narratives and ethical standards to present Bible characters who demonstrate successful and unsuccessful leadership traits. Emphasis is placed on highlighting principles that inform good leadership with a view to grounding leadership on biblical foundations and ethical principles which are globally applicable.

LEAD 743: Leadership in Cross-Cultural Settings

3 credits

An in-depth exploration of global leadership paradigms with emphasis on the role of cultural dynamics. The student is challenged to think critically about how Christian ethos may be operational as a coordinating principle. Respect and understanding are encouraged as a way to strengthen unity in diversity, both in the church and community.

LEAD 763: Emotional Intelligence and Leadership Competencies

3 Credits

To integrate personal and theological reflection with leadership principles by delving into issues of emotional intelligence, organizational culture, human development theory and ecclesiology. The context is Church and societal leadership formation based on sound biblical and theological principles to enhance competencies for effective servant leadership.

LEAD 714: Legal Framework and Organizational Policy

3 credits

This course is designed to expose students to key legal rules and principles that impact the legal environment of commerce, as well as the legal and policy framework in which business is conducted. The course focuses on selected aspects of the discipline which deal with business policy, structure and the legal and organizational frameworks for organizational efficiency. The goal of the course is to facilitate the students to understand the meaning of law, the legal environment of business, classification of law as well as employment laws.

LEAD 740: Corporate Governance

3 Credit

The course presents an in-depth analysis of the policy and strategic challenges of leadership and governance issues. It is intended to develop the skills of leaders within the business as well as not-for-profit settings to allow them to efficiently lead their organizations, with an emphasis on internal corporate governance and their mechanisms. The essence is to address the three pillars of corporate governance: transparency, accountability, and security to successfully running a company and forming solid professional relationships among its stakeholders which include board directors, managers, employees, and most importantly, shareholders. It has to embrace four bottom-line principles of people, purpose, processes and performance.

ORGANIZATIONAL LEADERSHIP SPECIALIZATION

LEAD 754: Models of Leadership in the Christian Context

3 Credit

The purpose of this course is to deepen the student's understanding of models of leadership leading to enrich their personal and family life and a greater commitment to ministry. Students will learn relevant biblical model that they can apply and to develop competencies contributing to the strengthening their masterly in evangelism, mission, and ministry. The goal is to increase the scholarly focus on the phenomena of Christian leadership and also look at reasons why the 20th century religious leadership has little to do with theoretical perspective in order to highlight some of the religious development in the scholarly efforts to define Christian leadership.

BUAD 708 Business, Church and Society

3 credits

This course is designed to help the participants to understand the basic philosophy of business in our contemporary society and to craft a philosophy of leadership that is rooted in sound ethical and biblical standards which may counteract the dehumanizing dynamics of doing business in our contemporary society. The goal being to expose the students to what is the most biblical way for church leaders to approach their task: relationally or functionally and how the churches can reclaim their roles as “communities of disciples” so that they become a counter-culture and a challenge to secular society.

BUAD 816: Applied Entrepreneurship and Creativity

3 Credits

The course in Entrepreneurship and creativity aims at enhancing the participants to acquire requisite skills in entrepreneurship for self-employment and creative works. The scope of the course covers a range of topics including identification of new business opportunities, establishment and ownership of a business venture, developing and writing of business plans, legal and business environment, marketing plans, record keeping among other several key areas of entrepreneurship for systematic development of students’ skill for effective management of business ventures.

BUAD 734: Issues in Organizational Leadership and Management

3 Credits

This course is designed to expose students to current and most significant issues facing leaders in Africa and beyond. These issues can be categorized broadly into religious issues, economic issues, health issues, and environmental issues. Selected challenges within these categories will be dealt with and analyzed so as to broaden the knowledge and critical thinking of the students. Speakers will include practitioners and industry players while students will also be required to make presentations on selected topics.

LEAD 713: Systems Thinking and Corporate Strategic Leadership

3 Credits

Effective decision-making and learning in a world of growing dynamic complexity requires strategic leaders to become systems thinkers. This course combines research, readings and in-depth discussions with assignments designed to enable students to think strategically and lead effectively. The course enables the student to understand how to integrate organizational systems with corporate strategy. In general, systems’ thinking focuses on recognizing the interconnections among the parts of a whole entity (the system) and synthesizing the interconnections into a unified view of the whole entity (the system). The concepts present a holistic view of an organization – a system concept of patterned relationship among the components that hang together over time and operate toward a common purpose. The students need to appreciate that by integrating all systems with strategy requires great vision so as to see the firm as an organic whole.

LEAD 787: Advanced Topics in Organizational Leadership Research 3 Credits

The purpose of this course is to facilitate the development of a high impact attitude, skills and character traits needed to become a spiritual leader. The course focuses on several topical issues central to theories of leadership that will examine areas such as Church and society, social media and its impact on church leadership, corporate social responsibility, and organizational behavior, among other topics.

STRATEGIC BUSINESS LEADERSHIP SPECIALIZATION

BUAD 723: Advanced Strategic Management and Planned Change 3 Credits

This course is designed to developing the strategic competencies of students, by presenting and discussing advanced strategic practices and concepts in the business context. Drawing on varied theoretical traditions, contemporary research and case study analysis, students will secure an advanced perspective of the strategic management discipline. To this end the course utilizes a number of case studies and business simulation that incorporates the development of strategic plans.

BUAD 816: Applied Entrepreneurship and Creativity 3 Credits

The course in Entrepreneurship and creativity aims at enhancing the participants to acquire requisite skills in entrepreneurship for self-employment and creative works. The scope of the course covers a range of topics including identification of new business opportunities, establishment and ownership of a business venture, developing and writing of business plans, legal and business environment, marketing plans, record keeping among other several key areas of entrepreneurship for systematic development of students' skill for effective management of business ventures.

BURM 790: RESEARCH METHODS AND STATISTICS 3 Credits

This course covers an overview of qualitative and quantitative research methods reminding students of the similarities and difference between the two research paradigms. Students learn the types of research questions which call for qualitative research designs and which ones require quantitative designs. In this course students also learn about sampling techniques and how to determine optimal sample sizes for various study designs. Focus is on qualitative and quantitative data analysis techniques, interpretation of qualitative data; reading, interpreting and reporting quantitative univariate and bivariate statistics. Further, the learners acquire knowledge on research study processes. Special emphasis is placed on the processes employed to conduct interviews, observations and questionnaire administration correctly to collect useful data. Students learn to employ appropriate research terms specific to qualitative or quantitative research, and utilize appropriate methods of data analysis for the two different paradigms.

BURM 791: Applied Qualitative Research3 Credits

This course is a study of the principles of qualitative research designs within the context of qualitative methodologies, such as case studies, ethnographical studies, phenomenological interpretive studies, Grounded theory and when to apply the different methods. The primary goal of this course is to assist students in preparing to collect qualitative data and apply appropriate qualitative research method for the desired data, and be able to accurately code the data and accurately carryout thematic analysis as students develop their dissertations. The course should also introduce students to the use of relevant software for qualitative data analysis.

BURM 792: Applied Quantitative Research3 Credits

This course is designed to broaden and enrich the students' knowledge and understanding of statistical methodology as it pertains to the study of multivariate techniques used in the social and behavioural sciences. The goal is to develop skills with a range of procedures and programs for multivariate data analysis. The focus will be on practical issues such as selecting the appropriate analysis, preparing data for analysis, interpreting output data, and presenting results of a complex nature using statistical packages such as SPSS (PASW). The course assumes familiarity with basic concepts in statistics. Computer literacy is essential for using statistical software.

BURM 793: Research Seminar 13 Credits

Research seminars help students refine their skills of research, text processing, searching scholarly information and presenting their work. Students also improve their understanding of study design, which includes defining the hypothesis, providing a rationale for it and selecting a line of argument. The research seminars provide a forum that enables students to enrich their understanding between theory and practice before embarking on actual research writing and publications. Attending seminars has numerous benefits, including improving communication skills, gaining expert knowledge, networking with others and renewing motivation and confidence in research activities.
